The Little Big City.
Some Are Hopeful.
The Moon's Shadow.
A Cataract for Us All

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THIS IS written in the city often called "Little Old New York." This "little city," which happens to be the biggest in the world, is a good seaside resort. You may find hotel rooms, or entire apartments, hundreds of feet above the street, with a cool breeze coming directly from the ocean.

If romantic, you may imagine that it comes straight across from Spain, since Madrid is opposite New York.

THIS CITY of wealth and poverty, folly and wisdom, success and misery is more cheerful, in the upper strata, than it was a few weeks ago.

The stock market has come to life. Men and women always find money for gambling, even in depression. Because stocks have gone up, although dividends have not returned, many believe that good times are hurrying back.

SOME BUSINESS men of consequence also believe that signs are cheerful. J. H. Rand, of the Remington Rand Company, ordering four and a half millions worth of raw materials in advance, anticipates a manufacturing increase of 25 per cent in 1933.

P. A. S. Franklin, United States shipping operator, says, as he sails from London, that world conditions are much better, because confidence has increased.

He gives that credit to England. That nation, says he, "bred the confidence." If the pound, off the gold basis, and selling around three dollars and a half, breeds confidence, imagine what a pound at par value would do.

On August 31, when the moon causes an eclipse of the sun, scientists will study the event from airships 4½ miles up, photographing shadows of the swiftly moving shadow that the moon will cast upon the earth.

A few centuries ago, the same men would have hidden their faces in terror, imploring their various gods not to let the demon devour the sun. From superstitious terror to airplane photography is a long step forward.

W. J. CONNERS prints, in his Buffalo Courier Express, a picture of Lieut. Van Rhyne, Holland navy, swimming in the cool rushing waters of the upper rapids, only three hundred feet above the brink of the cataract.

A crowd looked on, wondering how any man could enjoy himself, under such conditions, death only 300 feet away. Police yelled their orders, but Van Rhyne, an entrant in the Olympic swimming contests, finished his swim, calmly.

WHAT WE SEE impresses us, what we do not see makes little impression. Show a man one child drowning, and he will jump in, risking his life, if necessary. Tell him that thousands are suffering in the slums, or far away in China, and he will say:

"That's too bad."

We all wonder at a man swimming calmly above Niagara's cataract, while all of us move around in the swift stream of life, with a deeper cataract just ahead, knowing that we may be swept over any day, never to return, and barely thinking about it.

THE NEW YORK Advertising Club and American Federation of Labor have a plan for recovery, with seven points. The six-hour day and five-day week is one of the points, heartily indorsed by the Federation of Labor.

Revision of anti-trust laws, to eliminate waste caused by compulsory competition, is a very sound point.

A FOUR BILLION federal bond issue, to promote public works and employment, is another point. It is to be hoped that the government would find a way to finance its works, without paying exorbitant interest, since it must, most idiotically, pay interest for the use of money and credit created by itself.

Economy in government is the sixth plank, but that would mean cutting down patronage. You cannot do much in that direction, while politicians rule.

Plank seven calls for repeal of prohibition. That is coming in the slow course of events. But if repeal is based only on a desire to tax beer and other alcoholic drinks, to the limit, bootlegging and harmful home-brewing will continue.

High beer taxes will do as much to promote bootlegging as prohibition laws can do. Our troubles will not be ended merely by wiping out prohibition legislation. Too many have acquired the speak-easy-bootleg-home-brew-habit.

THE LEAGUE of Nations will have a chance to show what it amounts to, in connection with the Manchurian question. The League said to Japan:

"You must not take Manchuria."

"Kindly mind your business. The Manchurians themselves set up their independent government. We merely recognize that government, as you have recognized all sorts of queer European governments, and thefts of colonies, since the big war."

JAPAN THINKS that if England and France can take territories, colonies and billions of dollars from Germany and Austria, Japan has a right to make desirable acquisitions, under the

DAVIS SILENT ON PINCHOT ATTACK

Governor Urges G.O.P. Drop Senator Facing Trial in Lottery

HARRISBURG, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot's demand that Senator James J. Davis be asked to resign his candidacy for re-election because of his indictment by a federal jury for participation in an alleged national lottery, will remain unanswered for at least a week.

The resignation, sought in a letter to State Chairman Edward Martin, demanded that the Republican state organization ask the Senator to withdraw as a candidate in the November elections.

Senator Davis said last night in Cleveland, where he is attending a convention of the Loyal Order of Moose, of which he is director general, he would make no statement until sometime next week. Martin could not be reached for comment.

CITES RACKETEERING

In asking Davis to quit, Gov. Pinchot's letter said:

"The whole country is aroused against racketeering in all its forms, and Davis stands indicted as a lottery racketeer.

"Ever since he first became a candidate for the Senate, and even before that time James J. Davis, junior Senator from Pennsylvania, has been under suspicion.

"Whether these reports were true or untrue is not now important, but it is both important and true that Davis has just been indicted by a grand jury.

"The charge is a particularly unpleasant one. It is alleged that he not only broke the law by engaging in an illegal lottery, but that he also received at least $100,000 from the proceeds of the lottery, and thus converted to his own use funds

Coolidge Enlists In Hoover Campaign

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Calvin Coolidge has expressed a willingness to aid in the Republican national campaign, Col. John Q. Tilson, director of the Republican Eastern Speakers' Bureau, announced today. The question of just how Coolidge can best help, however, is yet to be determined, he said.

Lindy and Thaden Confer in Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed his monoplane here today. Employes at Logan Field said the flying colonel was on a business trip. He was met by Herbert Thaden, husband of Louise Thaden, the endurance flier, and departed in Thaden's automobile.

Daughter Of John D. 'Broke' at Death

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Although the fortune of the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick once was estimated to be worth $60,000,000, her estate may not be solvent, according to reports today.

Unfortunate real estate investments, the decline of stock prices and large donations to charity reduced Mrs. McCormick's fortune to an amazing extent. However, the return of better economic conditions would greatly increase the estate's value, it was pointed out.

Her holdings consisted largely of large blocks of real estate included in the Edith Rockefeller McCormick Trust, now practically unmarketable; jewelry acquired at a cost of $5,000,000; her town and country homes, both mortgaged heavily; rare works of art, and sundry stocks and bonds, furniture, plate, and personal belongings.

The income from the trust established for Mrs. McCormick by her father, John D. Rockefeller, at the time of the dissolution of the Standard Oil trust, ceases at her death. The principal is divided among her three children.

Mrs. McCormick's Death Peaceful

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Death, near the close of her 60th year of life, has ended finally the career of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick—social dictator, linguist, patron of the arts, who

OSLO AWAITING OCEAN FLIERS

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Two young American airmen, Clyde A. Lee and John Bochkon, were anxiously awaited at the military airfield outside Oslo today, where they were expected to complete a non-stop transatlantic flight from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on which they took off yesterday morning.

Although not due until between 5 and 6 p. m., the fliers were believed not unlikely to arrive at any time from noon on.

Weather was fine all over Norway.

PORT MENIER, Anticosti Island, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Low lying clouds and heavy rain today forced further postponement of the hop-off of Col. George Hutchinson and his "flying family" for Hopedale, Labrador, on the third leg of their leisurely airplane jaunt to Europe.

There was a possibility the weather might clear sufficiently to enable a getaway later in the afternoon.

BOMB PERILS DUQUESNE FAMILY

Russellton Postoffice Burned; Cripple Saves Children

One man leaped to safety, a crippled father carried out his two children in a blanket, and a building was damaged by a dynamite bomb in early morning fires and an explosion in the Pittsburgh district.

A two-story frame building owned by the Republic Steel Corporation, and occupied by the Bessemer Supply Company and the postoffice, at Russellton, was destroyed by fire early today.

Albert Navarro, a cripple, bundled his two children in a blanket and carried them to safety when fire destroyed his home, 1305 Matilda street, East McKeesport.

Exploding with a heavy blast, a dynamite bomb tore away the porch and damaged the first floor of the grocery and residence of Andrew Danzak, 322 South Fourth street, Duquesne, according to a police report.

FIREMEN HELPLESS

Unabel to obtain water, four fire companies stood by early today while flames destroyed the building housing the Russellton postoffice and Bessemer Supply Company.

Alarms had been sounded for Tarentum, New Kensington, Curtisville and Brackenridge Heights fire departments, but the only water source, a creek, had been diminished by the drought.

Awakened by the shouts of a neighbor, Marino Gondean, the building custodian, leaped from the porch roof to the ground

Mollison Delays Hop, Aides Forced Down

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Capt. James A. Mollison again had to postpone his return flight to Europe today because of unfavorable weather.

Better Times Near, Says Heckscher, 84

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Better economic times are near at hand, as is a spiritual revival throughout the world, declared August Heckscher, philanthropist, today, his eighty-fourth birthday.

He advocated further immigration restrictions as a means of relieving unemployment.

Hitler Vanishes, Aides Deny Collapse Rumors

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Adolph Hitler had disappeared from his accustomed haunts today and a rumor spread that he had been taken to a sanitarium after a nervous collapse.

Two newspapers carried the story and Hitler's associates in the National Socialist party spent most of the morning describing the rumor as utter nonsense.

The party headquarters in Munich called the story of Hitler's breakdown an "absolute lie," adding that he had gone on a long fishing trip.

Nevertheless, the rumor persisted. It was said that Hitler's violent language in a message to Chancellor Von Papen the other day concerning imposition of the death sentence on five Fascists at Beuthen showed that his nerves were unstrung.

One story going around today said Hitler made a strange impression on the chancellor when they talked two weeks ago by constantly slapping his thighs in a nervous gesture during their conversation.

Morgue officials were not informed of the boy's home address.

Bonus Feud Convicts Freed in Washington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Two former members of the bonus army, who were sentenced to jail following riots during which the former service men were evicted, were freed yesterday.

Judge Isaac R. Hitt suspended the remainder of the 180-day terms given Pomery Gravely, Negro, and Harold Irwin. They were convicted of unlawful occupancy of government property near the scene of the fighting that resulted in two deaths on July 28.

BANK CRISIS PAST, SAYS PRESIDENT

Industrial Leaders Urged to Assist Labor, Farmers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—President Hoover today recommended to a national gathering of outstanding businessmen plans for sharing jobs now available so as to decrease unemployment, as the step which would do most at this time to "accelerate our progress."

In a speech delivered at the session opened by the President, Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, announced that the national bank receivers had been instructed to suspend foreclosure proceedings for 60 days.

CREDIT LINKED

Standing before more than 200 members of the business and industrial committees created in each Federal Reserve district and summoned to the national capital by him, the President linked his job-sharing plea with suggestions for "a better distribution of credit."

The President said the nation has successfully weathered "the major financial crisis" and asked that businessmen assume new initiative and responsibility to restore labor and agriculture to higher levels.

The Chief Executive set as the aim of the national conference a co-ordination of governmental and private activities, so as to enable a directed attack against depressing factors along the entire economic front.

Out of executive meetings between business leaders and administration chieftains here yesterday, there emerged a proposal for today's conference looking toward creation of a central contact group to co-ordinate private and governmental activities.

BANK OF PGH. PAYS AGAIN

A second dividend, amounting to 10 per cent of the claims, will be paid by the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., immediately. This makes a total of 60 per cent paid since the closing of the bank. The dividend will amount to about $2,686,000 and will be paid by checks through the First National Bank of Pittsburgh.

C. O. Thomas, receiver for the bank, announced that in order to expedite delivery of the dividend, 2,000 notices would be mailed daily to the 15,000 depositors and claimants beginning today.

Payment of the first dividend last December was made possible through the First National Bank, which transaction provided for liquidation over 18 months, but this obligation was discharged in six months, making possible the new dividend, Thomas said.

Town Places Bounty Of $40 on 'Speaks'

SAYRE, Pa., Aug. 26.—(INS.)—The little town of Nicholas, N. Y., across the state line from here, has offered a bounty of $40 to the county for each arrest of a bootlegger or speakeasy proprietor.

A committee of citizens contributes $15 of the bounty and the other is given by a local "boosters club."

Girls Swim Marathon In Nude

TORONTO, Ontario, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Two of the swimming lassies in the 10-mile water marathon under way this afternoon battled the icy water of Lake Ontario without being hampered by bathing suits.

They were 17-year-old Liza Commanda, Indian princess, and 18-year-old Ruth Downing, of Toronto, who was accompanied during the swim by her police dog "Chief."

The two mermaids were clothed in a towel and sheet at the starting line, when the gun barked they cast off these habiliments and flashed into the water.

Posse Starts Hunt For Farmer's Slayer

LANCASTER, O., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—A posse of nearly 300 men started today on a systematic search for the unidentified slayer of Earl Basing, 42, farmer and father of five children, shot in the back with a shotgun as he set astride a horse on his farm.

'Missing' Bonus Chief Disrupts Legion Meet

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Walter W. Waters, commander of the B. E. F., appeared at the state legion convention today—as a member of the legion—and caused a flurry of excitement when challenged at the door. He announced:

"I rejoined the American Legion last night. I was a member once before, of the John Thompson Post, at Weiser, Idaho. Last night I was invited by West End Post 1061 to become a member and I accepted."

Asked whether he intended to make an appeal for an immediate payment of the bonus from the floor, he replied:

"I am not a delegate. I did not come here to cause any dissension."

Waters was allowed to proceed to the gallery.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Mayor "Eddie" McCloskey, red-haired benefactor of the bonus forces in Johnstown, last night said W. W. Waters, commander of one group of the veterans, had been "shanghaied by Department of Justice agents." McCloskey said:

COUNTY BOARDS TO CONTROL OUTLAY

State to Advance No Cash; Favoritism Banned

HARRISBURG, Aug. 26.—Rules under which the $12,000,000 Talbot relief fund will be distributed among the counties was announced today by Gov. Pinchot at the conclusion of a meeting of the State Emergency Relief Board, of which he is chairman.

They were made public in letters to persons in each county whom he invited to serve as members of the county unemployment relief boards to supervise the distribution of the money to the unemployed. Chairmen of the county boards have been asked to attend a meeting in the Governor's office next Wednesday.

DUTIES OUTLINED

The duties of the County Board, the Governor explained in his letters of invitation will be to take complete charge of state and federal relief work in its county, to determine through what agencies relief should be distributed, co-ordinate the work of all relief agencies, to decide what part of the funds allocated to the county shall be spent for direct relief and what for work relief, and, in general, to administer relief in the county, subject to the direction and approval of the State Emergency Relief Board.

The $12,000,000 fund of the Talbot relief act becomes available the following day, $1,500,000 being allotted for distribution in September as the first of seven monthly instalments.

NO CASH ADVANCE

The money the state contributes to counties for direct relief can be used to provide food only, the regulations reveal. Shelter, clothing and fuel must be provided from local sources. The rules provide:

"All direct relief will be distributed in the form of food, food orders or otherwise, on the basis of actual need.

"No money will be advanced to county boards, but the money value of food orders, properly issued, filled and approved, will be paid by the State Treasurer when assembled and forwarded to him.

"Rent, light, heat, clothing or other supplies must be provided locally.

"For the present the basis of relief is established at a minimum food budget for each family. The money allowance for this minimum will be determined for each county or locality by the state emergency relief board in consultation with the county boards. It may, if money is available, be increased later to meet the higher cost of food in winter.

"No food order will specify the store or stores at which it must be cashed. Any storekeeper who increases his prices to holders of food orders will be barred."

Able bodied men in families receiving direct relief will be offered work relief from the Talbot act's funds in sufficient quantities to earn the amount of free aid given his family.

WEEKLY RELIEFF

Workers may work out a month's maintenance or less at a single stretch in the course of each month, but relief will be supplied to them weekly, as to non-workers.

Seven members will serve on each county Emergency Relief Board.

Disbursing the relief on the basis of need without favoritism, except that persons able to work, but who refuse to accept tasks offered them, shall be barred, will be the aim, the board announced. None of the money can be used for overhead, which must be financed locally.

Funds for relief to any locality will be distributed only upon application by the responsible public authorities to the state Emergency Relief Board, through the county board.

DATA DEMANDED

Such application shall set forth:

A—Estimate of number of unemployed in county.

B—Number of dependents upon relief.

C—Amount of state money still unspent.

D—Account of manner in which state money was or is being spent.

Estimate of county's relief needs for September and its needs for October, 1932.

F—Ability of county to meet its own relief needs, including: (1) Amount of money borrowed compared to legal and actual extent of borrowing power; (2) Private relief donations in 1931 compared to donations in normal years and compared to estimated income (wealth) of county; (3) Poor taxes on hand, due, and to be due before March 31, 1933, and (4) Any other pertinent information.

BOARDS UNPAID

"Each County Emergency Relief Board will be directly responsible for carrying out the policies and decisions of the State Emergency Relief Board.

"Full accounting for every dollar will be required. As under state government, all accounts will be audited by the Auditor General.

"The allocation of funds will be made by the State Emergency Relief Board, which will prescribe methods and forms of keeping accounts.

"Members and employes of the county boards will draw no salaries, allowances or expenses from state (or federal) relief funds.

"The cost of local administration must be met by the localities through public or private funds.

"All costs, other than labor and inspection of work relief projects approved by the State Emergency Relief Board, must be guaranteed in advance by the state or the localities.

ALLEGHENY FUNDS

Of the fund, approximately $1,800,000 is expected to be allocated to Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, half to the city and half to the county. Maj. J. Clyde Miller, of the County Poor Directors, said he had not received any intimation as to the identity of the persons asked by Gov. Pinchot to serve as members of the local relief board.

Already facing a deficit of hundreds of thousands of dollars this year for expenses in administering public funds which provided nothing for administration, officials of the Allegheny County Emergency Association and the Welfare Fund today were at a loss to know where money to administer state aid could be obtained. Private money may be sought for the purpose.

PA. SPURS U. S. ON SALES TAX

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Enactment of a state sales tax by the Pennsylvania Legislature has revived talk of a national sales levy in the offices of the state's congressmen.

It is generally believed that Senator Reed will sponsor a sales tax bill when Congress reconvenes in December. During the last session Reed pleaded that a sales tax, with exemptions on food and clothing, would raise the demanded budget-balancing revenue with the least possible effect on the income of taxpayers, large and small.

Several of the 34 Pennsylvania representatives who voted against or were absent at the vote on the sales tax at the last session later said they might reconsider their action if the measure came up again.

Pittsburgh Girl Third in Air Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Fred Dorsett, of Augusta, Ga., led the eastern wing of the cross-country air derby into the Municipal Airport here today from East St. Louis. He was followed by S. C. Huffman, of Cincinnati, O. Helen MacCloskey, of Pittsburgh, landed third.

RECEIVERS TAKE I. R. T. LINES

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Unable to meet maturity of $31,000,000 notes on September 1, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the world's largest transit system, was placed in receivership today.

Victor J. Dowling, former Supreme Court justice, and Thomas E. Murray were appointed receivers by Judge Martin T. Manton.

This is one of the largest receiverships in the history of American finance, the system having assets of $494,068,644, according to its report of June 30.

The receivership was forecast by a sharp break the last two days in the company's bonds and stock. Besides the $31,000,000 notes due on September 1, the company has $10,000,000 of 6 per cent notes falling due on October 1. The receivership will "freeze" these loans.

Mussolini Cheered For Threat to Foes

PERUGIA, Italy, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Inaugurating an aqueduct and new fountain here, Premier Mussolini described the significance of the ceremony thus:

"Water and welfare for the people who work, and the sword for the enemies of the regime."

PICKETS FREE, IOWA ROADS PATROLLED

3,000 Farmers Ready To Aid Blockade; Clash Averted

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Striking farmers consolidated their positions today in a renewed attempt to bottle up Council Bluffs, gateway to the important Omaha (Neb.), market, encouraged by a victory in gaining freedom under bond of 55 of their highway pickets.

Re-enforced by comrades from northwestern Iowa, 3,000 of them, it was estimated by officials, were massed in blockades along the principal highways leading into Council Bluffs—apparently in full control of traffic.

Capitulating to the demands of about 1,000 of the striking agriculturists, who threatened to storm the jail and release the 55 prisoners if they were not freed, Sheriff P. A. Lainson withdrew his deputies and made no attempt during the night to keep the highways open.

Although it was conceded that the freeing of the pickets by Sheriff Lainson had eased the situation temporarily, the activity of the farmers in re-establishing their blockade indicated their determination to prevent movement of farm produce.

Meanwhile the situation at Sioux City took on a new aspect when 88 men arrested by Sheriff John A. Davenport were released. Picket lines were maintained about Sioux City, but the situation reported as quiet.

MINERS PLAN NEW MARCH

GILLESPIE, Ill., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—A new invasion of Southern Illinois coal fields in protest against the new $5 a day basic wage scale, by a select group of quick moving pickets was planned today by striking miners whose "peaceful" caravan was beaten back at the Franklin County line by gunfire and clubs of deputy sheriffs.

The Miners' Policy Committee announced mass meetings were being held in subdistricts throughout the state today to map the new drive, which, leaders said, would be staged with the assistance of fellow diggers from Kentucky, Indiana and Oklahoma.

The date for the new move will be set within a few days and the miners will advance "on several fronts," leaders declared.

Artisans Aiding Strike of Farmers

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Imagine the embarrassment of the Farmers' Holiday Association today when their leaders found a painter, a drug-store clerk, a barber, a bandmaster, a gasoline station attendant, and a jobless veteran among the strike pickets. This information was divulged when local police noted the occupations of their prisoners.

that should properly have gone to children and others in need."

URGES NEW TICKET

The Governor was careful to point out:

"It is not enough to say that Davis has not yet been proven guilty . . . The Republican party cannot afford to run a candidate who is under suspicion."

In the event of the Senator's refusal to resign, the Governor asked Martin and the Republican state committee to pre-empt a ticket and "put on it the name of a Republican against whom even the shadow of suspicion cannot rest."

Referring to W. D. B. Ainey, who resigned as chairman of the Public Service Commission recently, Pinchot explained that he expected Davis to refuse to withdraw, saying:

"He probably will not have the prudence to do what Ainey did."

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Delegates to the forty-fourth international convention of the Loyal Order of Moose today expressed their confidence in Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, who is under indictment in New York on charges of participating in a lottery, by voting to continue under his leadership as director general.

BOMB PERILS FAMILY

when a blazing stairway blocked his escape.

Residents rushed the blazing building to salvage six sacks of mail. The mail was taken to the residence of Harry Hutchinson.

AWAKENED BY CHILD

Navarro was awakened in his smoke-filled second floor bedroom by the screaming of his 4-year-old daughter, Margaret. Navarro seized a blanket in which he placed Margaret and his son, Albert, Jr., aged 2, and hobbled down a rear stairway into the back yard. It was Margaret's birthday.

Margaret's cries also awakened neighbors, who sounded an alarm. The blaze was fought for nearly two hours by two East McKeesport volunteer fire companies. H. A. Young, the fire chief, placed the loss at $5,500.

The fire had raged through the interior of the house, leaving only a shell standing. Its cause could not be traced by firemen.

Mrs. Navarro is vacationing in Canada with a one-year-old daughter.

BOMBING MYSTERY

Danzak, the bomb victim, said he was unable to account to police for the bombing of his home. He denied receiving threats and also that he had any enemies.

The explosion brought out the Duquesne Fire department. Danzak and his wife were asleep in a second floor bedroom, directly over the back porch where the charge had been placed. They were rocked from their beds. Two grown children were asleep in a front room.

The porch was shattered. Splinters were hurled into the street. The wall leading into the living room was wrecked and windows in other parts of the house shattered. The grocery in the front of the building, a three-story frame, was not damaged.

A fire in a one-story frame garage scorched the residence of Mrs. Margaret Knapp, 120 Mulberry street, Duquesne, early today. The garage, empty, was destroyed. Damage to Mrs. Knapp's home was estimated at $500.

WALKER FIGHTS ON SHERWOOD BANK CHARGE

Missing Agent Pictured As 'Handy Andy' for Boxers, Actresses

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Mayor James J. Walker, through his counsel, today attempted to dispute the charge that the missing Russell T. Sherwood banked nearly $1,000,000 for him.

When the hearing before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was resumed, John J. Curtin, the Mayor's counsel, introduced photostatic copies of records of the Central Hanover Bank relating to the account of the late Senator George Blauvelt, who died in 1924. Curtin contended that Sherwood's "special account" was a continuation of the old Blauvelt account and therefore had nothing to do with Mayor Walker.

SEABURY OVERRULED

Curtin pointed out that the Blauvelt account was in existence before Walker was elected Mayor in 1926.

Gov. Roosevelt asked Curtin, when he started to introduce the bank records, what he intended to prove and the Mayor's attorney replied:

"I want to show the relationship that existed between Sherwood and George A. Blauvelt as far back as 1921."

Samuel Seabury, the Mayor's accuser, objected, but the Governor permitted the records to be offered in evidence.

Seabury alleges Sherwood was Walker's financial agent, a charge the Mayor denies.

Francis J. McIntyre, of 32 Broadway, once associated with Senator Blauvelt, was called to the stand. In 1913 McIntyre was employed in the Blauvelt office and in 1919 became a member of the firm.

NAMES NOTED CLIENTS

McIntyre pictured Sherwood as sort of a mathematical "handy Andy" for persons in all walks of life, including senators, actresses, real estate men and prize fighters. The Dolly Sisters; Beatrice Lillie, the actress; Mike McTigue, former middleweight champion, and Johnny Dundee, former lightweight titleholder, were among Sherwood's clients, according to McIntyre.

Martin Conboy, the Governor's legal counsel, questioned McIntyre. He first wanted to know if the Mayor "ever came down to the office of Warren & McIntyre." The witness replied:

"I don't recall that he has ever been in our office since he became Mayor."

Miss Mildred Day, who succeeded to Sherwood's job, followed McIntyre on the stand and testified that since Sherwood left, about a year ago, she has deposited in her own bank account about $2,000 in dividend checks that have come in for him.

guise of self-government, in Asia.

If this country had been pushed into that League, we should probably be told, by Europe:

"You are close by, and rich, and did not lose your share of men in the war. So you go over and compel Japan to do as we say."

EVERY MAN and every newspaper that has helped to keep the country out of that League of Nations deserves public thanks. It is bad enough to be swindled out of ten billions on loans, as we shall be, by our dear friends abroad, without being entangled in a web that would mean endless future loss and obligation.

Wife Testifies to Save Ex-Public Defender

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—While Frank J. Egan wept and protested that he didn't want her to testify, his wife, Mrs. Lorraine Kip Egan, took the witness stand late yesterday to join in the defense battle to save her husband and Albert Tinnin from the gallows for the murder of Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes.

Mrs. Egan testified she and her small son met the former public defender outside of his office at about 5:25 p. m., April 29, and drove with him to the beach.

The prosecution previously had charged Egan was seen walking near the Hughes home shortly after 5 o'clock that afternoon.

Maurelius Alberger, Negro, who said he formerly was a lieutenant in the United States Army, also testified he saw Mr. and Mrs. Egan in front of Egan's Kearny street office about 5 p. m., April 29.

Tinning declared he was with Mrs. Burton Barton the night he was accused by the state of slugging Mrs. Hughes into unconsciousness and placing her body under an automobile driven by Verne Doran. Mrs. Barton corroborated his testimony.

Doran, once a chauffeur for Egan, testified Egan planned Mrs. Hughes' death to obtain her property.

Girl Saved From Gang In Wild Chase; 1 Shot

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—A 21-year-old girl, kidnaped by a gang of men, was rescued by a police cruiser squad early today after a wild seven-mile chase in which a spectator was shot and wounded. The leader of the gang was captured.

The girl's struggles to escape were observed a few minutes later by police when they passed the kidnapers' automobile.

Hearing a blast of the police cruiser siren, six of the men jumped out of the car. Miss Smith escaped with a torn dress and without her shoes.

Sergt. Edwin Hesoun pursued the car, which sped away, and fired two shots, one of which hit a spectator, Albert Pratley, 50, inflicting a slight flesh wound.

Finally, the fugitive driver surrendered. He was held without charge, admitting having picked up Miss Smith, the police said, but denying there were any other men in the car.

She died peacefully after a lingering illness with cancer, the end coming in her Drake Hotel suite at 5:40 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) yesterday. About her were her reunited family and Edwin Krenn, her faithful friend and business associate who tossed his personal fortune of more than $1,000,000 into the market in an attmpt to bolster the dwindling fortune of John D. Rockefeller's younger daughter.

PEACEFUL DEATH

Mrs. McCormick succumbed to her slow but deadly malady as serenely as she had lived her life, filled though it was with romance, bitter personal disappointments, business successes, and finally financial reverses.

In the group at the bedside as the end came was Harolf F. McCormick, whose devotion to the dying woman attested the friendliness he has always shown since their divorce in 1921. There, too, was Mrs. McCormick's only son, Fowler, who alone had never completely broken the family ties. Present also were her older daughter, Muriel, now Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, of Middletown, Conn.; her third and youngest child, Mrs. Max Oser, the former Mathilde McCormick; Mrs. Fowler McCormick, the former Fifi Stillman; Mrs. Stillman's son, Alexander Stillman, and Maj. Hubbard, Muriel's husband.

J. D. NOT EXPECTED

Arrangements for Mrs. McCormick's funeral had not been completed today, and it was considered extremely unlikely that John D. Rockefeller, now in his 93d year, would be able to attend the last rites for his daughter, because of his advanced age. His son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who visited his sister recently, will leave for Chicago today, accompanied by his son, Milton.

Had Mrs. McCormick lived until next Wednesday she would have been 60 years old.

For the last few years she had suffered from cancer, undergoing an operation two years ago. It was revealed at the time, however, that the surgery had not been resorted to in time to check the ravages of the disease.

Flowers in Profusion At McCormick Bier

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Flowers in profusion were heaped today about the bier of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. Among them were 10 dozen tea roses ordered by John D. Rockefeller, Mrs. McCormick's father, and five dozen American Beauty roses sent by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Alexander Stillman, son of Mrs. Fowler McCormick, the former Anne (Fifi) Stillman, wired an order for a blanket of violets.

Legal to Lead Horse Against Traffic

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Ride a horse against traffic on a one-way street, and you are guilty of violating an ordinance. Lead him by the bridle the same way, and you are within the law.

Magistrate William A. Farrell today had established this distinction by his ruling in suspending sentence on Greta Steiner, proprietor of a riding academy, accused of illegally leading a horse on a one-way street.

Mrs. McCormick's Death Ends Society Reign

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick's death marked the close of a social dictatorship inw hich Mrs. McCormick held sway with a stern but queenly hand. Her position in the social world of this western metropolis was as definite and as absolute as was that of the first Mrs. Potter Palmer in her day. To the end it remained unchallenged.

She could and did cancel a luncheon planned for 200 persons, at the last moment, without a word of explanation. But this was only a minor incident compared with the calm manner in which she met the barrage of rumors in the social world that she was planning to marry Edwin Krenn, the young Swiss architect, whom she met during her long residence abroad.

But one of Chicago's most prominent citizens, whose name was unrevealed, was quoted today in the local press as saying he was positive Mrs. McCormick had never considered a second marriage.

Ever since divorce broke the matrimonial ties with Harold F. McCormick, even though she charged desertion, his room in her mansion on Lake Shore Drive was kept in readiness for his return, and every year on her birthday anniversary there was delivered to her a perfect yellow rose—her favorite flower, with his card attached.

It was the opinion of Krenn, Mrs. McCormick's business adviser, that financial worries contributed to her breakdown. Once LaSalle street, that thoroughfare of Chicago's high finance, estimated that Mrs. McCormick's wealth exceeded $40,000,000. That fortune, the gift of her father, is now but a fraction of that sum. Falling stock prices and decreased values of real estate were blamed for the decline. She was the organizer of vast Chicago and suburban real estate holdings, and with the decline in values she sacrificed much of her Standard Oil and other stocks to aid those who had purchased property from her.

The sadness of Mrs. McCormick's fatal illness was tempered by the knowledge before she died that family schisms had disappeared. Prior to her illness she and her daughter, Mrs. Oser, had been estranged because of the latter's marriage to the Swiss riding master. Mrs. Hubbard's marriage last year followed by Fowler's marriage to the former Mrs. Stillman, brought further discord. The final illness found them at the stricken woman's bedside, Mrs. Oser coming 7,000 miles in a successful race against death.

Alaskan Explorer Held Legally Dead

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Allen Carpe, who led an expedition up Mount McKinley in Alaska last spring, was declared legally dead by Surrogate James Foley yesterday.

Last May Carpe and Theodore Koven, another member of the expedition, fell into a crevasse. Koven's body was recovered but not Carpe's. Mrs. Carpe applied to the surrogate to have her husband's death recognized by the law.

MRS. M'CORMICK 'REINCARNATED'

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—The late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick once paid $25,000 for a horoscope cast by a famous astrologist who assured her she would live until she was 97 years old.

This and other unusual details in the life of John D. Rockefeller's daughter were recalled today.

At one time Mrs. McCormick said she believed herself to be a reincarnation of Mme. de Pompadour. When the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen was opened, she said she felt a responsive thrill, realizing that in a previous life she had been the child wife of an Egyptian prince.

Mrs. McCormick and her constant companion, Edwin Krenn, were frequently seen at neighborhood movie houses.

Chicago's "First Lady" met Krenn in Switzerland while attending a clinic dealing with Freudian psychology. She brought him to America shortly before her divorce and set him up in the real estate business.

Autoists Battle Crew After Crash

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—As the result of a free-for-all gun and club battle early this morning at Lost Creek between members of a train crew and three young farmers whose automobile crashed into a train at a crossing, three men, one of them a constable, are in hospitals and two men are in jail.

'TORTURE' BAND SENT TO PEN

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 26.—Long terms in the penitentiary today were given three "torture bandits" from McKeesport. William Meredith, 20, and Ralph Simpson, 22, were sentenced to 20 to 40 years, and Calvin Russell 15 to 30 years.

Before Judge Thomas H. Hudson in the Fayette County courts they pleaded guilty to robbing and beating 69-year-old J. W. Sailor in his home in Stewart Township.

They thought Sailor had funds hidden on his place, but they got only $1.60. To get this loot they whipped and beat him, and lighted a fire beneath the chair to which they had taped him.

They were captured by Connellsville police after a gun battle. In their getaway they stole three autos.

GANG KIDNAPS, ROBS 2 MORE

While police radio cars searched for them, a robber band of three, to whom a half dozen holdups have been traced in the past two days, added two more crimes to its string early today.

The blonde woman, who had heretofore been used as a decoy by the gang, was not reported seen.

Two of the band climbed into the automobile of C. A. Eld, of 612 Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, while it was stopped at a traffic light at Sixth avenue and Grant street, and forced Eld to drive to South Park where he was robbed of $5 and his automobile.

Later, a car believed to be Eld's, bearing no license plates, drove into the Standard Oil Company station at Fifth and Hamilton avenues. When the attendant, Louis Elwell, of 2911 Gilmore way, came out to service the car, he was pulled into the machine and taken to Paulson and Lemington avenues, where he was robbed of $13, he told police.

After he had watched them steal an automobile, Patrolman James Fitzhugh, attached to Forty-third Street Station, arrested six Pitcairn youths in Highland avenue after a chase of several blocks.

CLERIC, WOMAN STILL MISSING

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Police today await some clue that might help them in their search for the Rev. Carl Whipple, 35, and Mrs. Arabelle Glessner, 26, who disappeared from the home of Whipple's parents here more than a week ago.

Mrs. Whipple sought aid of federal authorities but was told there is nothing they can do.

Mrs. Glessner, mother of two children, is the wife of a Somerset County farmer and livestock trader. She ended a visit at the Whipple home August 15, saying she intended to return to Berlin, Pa.

Mrs. Glessner was accompanied by one of her daughters, Ruth, 8. The Whipples have one son.

SUICIDE LETTER MAY AID CLERIC

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—A purported suicide note was injected today into the habeas corpus fight of the Rev. S. A. Berrie, charged with the poison murder of his first wife, Mrs. Fannie Berrie.

The note, which defense attorneys said was found in a family Bible at the Berrie home, reads:

"I am tired of life. It is not worth the effort. Goodbye forever. Fannie."

The attorneys said specimens of Mrs. Berrie's handwriting would be presented in court in an effort to show that she wrote the note.

Judge Enloe V. Vernor, who denied Berrie release on bail at a recent habeas corpus hearing, ordered a new hearing for tomorrow.

Less than two months after the death of his first wife, the minister married Ida Bess Bright, 19-year-old Sunday School teacher in his tabernacle.

MULVANE, Kan., Aug. 25.—(AP.)—As a country doctor for more than half a century, Dr. S. T. Shelly has had many busy days—and nights. But no day was any busier than yesterday for the 76-year-old physician, who still conducts an active practice.

The doctor held a party for those whom he has ushered into the world or as he puts it, those whom he gave their "start in life." Approximately 1,000 of his 4,500 "babies" were present.

There was Mrs. Earl Maple, 51, and her son, Otis, 27, and Otis' son, 7 months old. Herbert Butterfield, 32, came all the way from Jacksonville, Fla. Albert Norden, a 52-year-old farmer, was the oldest "baby." Another farmer, Bert Roby, living near here, is the proud father of Dr. Shelly's youngest babies, 3-week-old twins.

HOOVER'S HOLD TIGHTENED IN NEW ENGLAND

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—President Hoover today tightened his hold on the 41 electoral votes of the six New England states. With the tabulation of 2,832 additional ballots from that area in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, Hoover drew 1,905 to 927 for Roosevelt.

These additional returns shifted the percentage division on New England from 59-41 to 62-38 in Hoover's favor. A total of 7,454 New England ballots now has been counted, of these Hoover has 4,621 to Roosevelt's 2,833. This gives Hoover a majority in that region of 1,788.

RHODE ISLAND CLOSEST

Each of the six states except Rhode Island gave Hoover better than 2 to 1 of the new votes. Rhode Island is the only one of the group running reasonably close. Its 391 votes divided 212 Hoover to 179 Roosevelt, a Hoover advantage of 33.

Massachusetts shows Hoover 1,363, Roosevelt 751; Connecticut Hoover 1,569, Roosevelt 1,048; Vermont, Hoover 404, Roosevelt 234; New Hampshire, Hoover 357, Roosevelt 129; Maine, Hoover 716, Roosevelt 492.

Tabulation of 521 new ballots from the Rochester section of Western New York served to reduce Roosevelt's majority in that state from yesterday's 707 to 444. This was a Hoover gain of 263.

N. J. LEAD CUT

Seven scattered ballots from New Jersey divided six Hoover to one Roosevelt, reducing Roosevelt's slender margin of 27 in that state to 22.

With a total of 93,776 ballots tabulated for the country as a whole, Roosevelt has 57,640 to Hoover's 36,136, giving Roosevelt a majority of 21,504. This was a loss for the day of 1,246 to Roosevelt. However, he still has a substantial advantage, the vote dividing 61 to 39 per cent in his favor.

HOOVER GAINS IN POLL

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—President Hoover slightly checked the inroads of Gov. Roosevelt into his 1928 backers with the tabulation today of 3,360 additional ballots in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

These returns cut down the percentage of 1928 Republicans now backing the Democratic nominee from 40 to 39, and raised the Hoover hold on his old supporters from 60 to 61.

While Roosevelt suffered this percentage loss on the Republican side he increased his percentage of 1928 Democrats sticking with him this year from 95 to 96.

If these percentages were to hold good in the November balloting it would mean a loss by Roosevelt of only around a half to three-quarters of a million votes the country over from what Gov. Smith polled four years ago.

On the other hand should Roosevelt maintain his draw of around 40 per cent of Hoover's former strength, it would mean a loss of approximately 8,500,000 votes by Hoover, based on the total vote cast in 1928 being equalled this year.

POLL BY PARTIES

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The following tabulation shows the political party division of voters in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. Those under the Republican headings voted Republican and those under the Democratic headings voted Democratic in 1928. The non-committal columns represent those who failed to designate on their poll ballot cards their stand four years ago.

DECORATING A HERO

PRESIDENT HOOVER — COMMANDER CLAUDE A. JONES

HOOVER URGES JOB SHARING AS AID TO IDLE

able jobs, the President, who presided over the meeting, said:

"As a matter of national policy, the shortening of hours is necessary not alone to meet the need of the moment, but it may be necessary to take up the slack in the future from the vast and sudden advance in labor saving devices."

NOT U. S. JOB

Nevertheless, Mr. Hoover stated he did not believe that the direction of such job sharing systems as five, four and three-day weeks, along with shorter shifts, were "properly the function of government."

Chairman Fort, of the Home Loan Board, in announcing that Comptroller John W. Pole of the currency had ordered every National bank receiver to suspend foreclosure proceedings for 60 days, told the session:

"We are today wiring every state supervising authority, requesting like action. We want your help to see not only that receivers generally grant this 60-day respite, but that other lenders do likewise. There are times when forced liquidation of indebtedness is indefensible—certainly if any other means of procuring funds exists.

"It would be less shameful if, with relief in sight so soon, the courage and hope of our men and women should be extinguished by taking away their homes and their live savings."

MILLS' PROGRAM

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills outlined a program, including a plan for creation of a central business committee to direct united action by the 12 banking and industrial committees of the nation.

The Secretary of the Treasury emphasized the central committee was not to be an economic council directing the economic policies of the nation, but rather an organization to bring about co-operation between the government and private business.

Then, one by one, the heads of the government agencies directly involved in the new economic drive for jobs and credit addressed the meeting. Atlee Pomerene told of the hopes and purposes of the gigantic Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Owen D. Young, New York industrial leader and a prominent Democrat, told the conference that the prime purpose of the co-ordinated drive of business and government was to make more jobs.

He joined emphatically in the declaration to the nation's business leaders that it was to their best interest to see that the human family had a livelihood. He said:

"A father's job lost does more than humiliate the parent. It does more than weaken the self-respect of the child. It threatens that stability and so that opportunity for the future which is the basis of our hopes and the impulse of our accomplishments."

Among the more prominent of the national industrial leaders gathered in the room were Myron C. Taylor, of the United States Steel Corporation; H. I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Edsel Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer; Melvin A. Traylor and Edward N. Hurley, Chicago bankers; Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; Walter C. Teagle, of New York; T. N. Perkins, of Boston, and A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

FEW FORECLOSURES HERE

Receivers at the Bank of Pittsburgh, the Monongahela National and the Exchange National banks said today Comptroller Pole's order not to foreclose on mortgages for 60 days will not appreciably affect their institutions. Few, if any, foreclosures, they say, were in prospect in that period.

Opinion in banking circles, here, seemed to be that issuance of a similar order by State Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon would have little effect in the Pittsburgh district. State banking authorities, it is understood, are doing everything possible to avoid foreclosure proceedings.

B. & O. OFFICIAL DIES IN LEAP

BALTIMORE, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—William C. Coles, assistant valuation engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, late yesterday plunged to his death from the eleventh floor of the company's central office building.

Employes in the office with Coles said he appeared nervous during the afternoon and finally went to the window, saying:

"This time I am going to do it."

He leaped out. His body was found in a small alleyway between the building and the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

Coles had been in the employ of the railroad for 28 years and recently was chief engineer of the valuation department. He was born in St. Louis, Mo., July 9, 1886, and is survived by his widow and two sons, one six weeks old.

FRANCE FAVORS LIMITED TREATY

PARIS, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—France, declining to accede to the wishes of the United States, is willing to make only a short-time commercial treaty granting most-favored-nation treatment, it developed at renewal of Franco-American negotiations today.

The United States asked a durable treaty, and to obtain it offered compensatory legislation to protect French styles and copyrights, as well as a more liberal interpretation of the pharmaceutical act to let in more French medicines.

The concessions were offered by William S. Howell, Jr., first secretary of the American embassy, and Fayette W. Allport, commercial attache.

Despite French objections to the American proposals, however, it still was confidently expected an agreement would be reached, in view of the desire of both the French and American governments to create an atmosphere favorable to disarmament and war debt discussions later.

Aviation Mechanics Injured by Blast

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Thomas R. Palmer, 28, and Alvin Fisher, 32, aviation mechanics attached to Coast Guard Base 9, Cape May, N. J., were brought to St. Agnes' Hospital today after being blown into the air when gasoline fumes in a tank they were repairing, exploded.

Autoist in Hurry, Crashes Into Police Car

When his automobile dented the fender and knocked off the hub cap of a police scout car at Diamond and Grant streets yesterday, Paul T. Kluro, of 209 North Eighth street, Steubenville, told police he was in a hurry.

Patrolmen John Hickey and Charles Taylor, the crew, took him to Central Station, where a reckless driving charge was entered. In Traffic Court he was ordered to pay the damages, amounting to $5.60. Kluro paid the bill and was on his way to Steubenville 45 minutes after the accident.

MOTHER FOUND IN KIDNAP CASE

SAUSALITO, Cal., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—A woman, believed by Sheriff W. R. Sellmer, of Marin County, to be Mrs. Constance Smith Ferguson, charged with kidnaping her 5-year-old son, was located here yesterday.

Sheriff Sellmer said he had telegraphed to Newton, Mass., where the warrant was issued on complaint of Scott D. Ferguson, Boston attorney, and father of the boy, for instructions.

The woman, the Sheriff said, was found at the home of Mrs. Ferguson's mother.

SPEED TO SAVE SINKING YACHT

WOODSHOLE, Mass., Aug. 26.—(INS.)—The yacht, Betty K, was reported in distress off Handkerchief lightship in a radio message to the Coastguard station from the steamship City of Chattanooga.

The patrol boat, CG-280 was dispatched to her assistance.

The message from the City of Chattanooga read:

Walking Armory, He Pays Visit to Estranged Wife

SOUTH GATE, Cal., Aug. 26.—(INS.)—George Washington Porter was under arrest today charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Police said that when Porter called upon his estranged wife he had on his person—

A pistol, a home-made blackjack, a four-inch knife, a bottle of poison, a two-foot piece of hose (loaded) and two clubs.

HINT INSANITY PLEA BY KILLER

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The state today continued its fight to obtain a first degree murder verdict against Harry Clark, 24, confessed killer of his wife.

The defense has intimated it will plead insanity.

Clark collapsed twice yesterday as Mrs. F. A. Jarvis told from the stand how he had followed his estranged wife to her house and there stabbed her to death when she refused to accept a reconciliation.

PADLOCK WRIT FOLLOWS RAIDS

A temporary injunction, pending final hearing December 13, was granted in Federal Court against an alleged speakeasy, first floor, 166 Elm street, on a bill of complaint filed by the prohibition authorities, alleging violations of the dry law. The premises were raided five times since November 21, 1928, by prohibition agents, according to the complaint.

Four men who pleaded guilty to dry law violations received jail sentences.

Those sentenced, with the places where the offenses occurred, were: H. B. Crowl, Pitcairn, 30 days; Patrick McArdle, Latrobe, 24 days; Richard R. Steele, Pitcairn, 15 days, and Theodore T. Palmer, Mt. Pleasant, four days.

ESKIMOES VISIT 'GHOST SHIP'

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Twenty-eight Eskimo men were brought back safely to shore yesterday by rescue boats after a trip over the rough ice and a visit to the "ghost ship" Baychimo. They said they had been carried 30 miles from land on the grinding and crushing ice.

With their food supplies giving out and the ice breaking up beneath them, their leaders said, they survived only by splitting up into small parties and hunting for seal and bear and awaiting a shift in the easterly wind.

The Baychimo, a fur trader abandoned last fall when caught in the ice near Wainwright, was little damaged, they said.

PAROLE GIVEN WOMAN SLEUTH

David D. Cadugan, librarian at the North Side Carnegie Library, appeared in Criminal Court as a character witness for Mrs. Emma Ogden, of Brighton road, North Side, former department store detective, who pleaded guilty to the theft of wearing apparel from downtown stores. Judge Thomas M. Marshall paroled her two years.

While admitting theft in two stores, Mrs. Ogden denied she had stolen all the articles charged against her. She admitted that while living in New York some time ago she had pleaded guilty of attempted grand larceny.

Cadugan testified he had known Mrs. Ogden's family for many years and that they bore a good reputation. In her own defense, Mrs. Ogden said she had worked as a store investigator and detective in Pittsburgh for several years and had stolen the merchandise while out of work and despondent.

HORNE COMPANY PLANS STORE DOWNSTAIRS

About 125 new employes will service a new downstairs store which Joseph Horne Company plans to open in a short time, A. H. Burchfield, president, announced today.

The new division, composed of several departments, will feature quality merchandise in the low price field. On construction was spent approximately $100,000, Burchfield said.

WIDE LINE OF GOODS

Managed by J. S. Heintzelman, brought from Indianapolis, for the purpose, and directed and operated by the Horne executive staff, the new store will feature women's and children's outer and under apparel, shoes, millinery, hosiery, gloves and similar lines.

In making the announcement, Burchfield said:

"It will be distinctly different from the conventional type of downstairs store in that it will offer only first quality merchandise. It will stand on its own feet as an attractive, modernly equipped store specializing in reliable fashion-right merchandise at established lower price levels.

POLICIES SAME

"The policies of the downstairs store will be identical with those upstairs, with regard to charge accounts, delivery, adjustments and the like.

"The downstairs store will be aggressively competitive and will not permit itself to be undersold, at any time, on like quality."

Officers of the store are understood to have considered the new move for more than a year. Establishment of the division is a departure in Horne management, but will not, officials emphasize, change old policies.

AWAIT EYNON'S REPLY TO NEW CHARGES

HARRISBURG, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—A reply from Benjamin G. Eynon, deposed deputy secretary of revenue, to new charges of maladministration of the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles preferred against him by Dr. Clyde L. King, Secretary of Revenue, was awaited today following Eynon's return to the Capital.

Eynon said his dismissal resulted after his refusal to withdraw special, low-numbered automobile license tags awarded to Arthur, Louis and John Volpe, brothers and reputed Pittsburgh beer barons, recently slain by gang gunmen.

NEW CHARGES MADE

Broadening the attack Dr. King presented a number of new charges yesterday, accusing Eynon of issuing 38,000 special license numbers in one year, "many of which went to bootleggers and crooks."

Dr. King added that Eynon permitted one out of five gasoline dealers to get away with money due the state and that he cost the state $100,000 a year through special favors. Dr. King wrote:

"A person with such low standards of public administration has no place in the Department of Revenue."

The Secretary of Revenue disclosed copies of letters from Charles Pearson, of Pittsburgh, written on stationery of the Allegheny County Commissioners' office, asking special license numbers for the Volpe brothers. Pearson is a former state employe.

GOES TO CAPITAL

These letters, Dr. King said, were addressed to Eynon, who was accused by the Revenue Department chief of advising Pearson that the Volpe brothers had been forwarded the requested numbers.

Dr. King said one of the recipients of a special license number was the late Mickey Duffy, Philadelphia gangster, who was shot and killed as he slept at a beachfront hotel in Atlantic City.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Maytair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Wedding plans come before all else on the social schedule, and I must tell you about further plans for the wedding of Mildred Ross, daughter of Mrs. John Henley Ross, of Madison, N. J., before anything else. Mildred is, you know, a granddaughter of David B. Oliver, of Pittsburgh. She is to marry Theodore Engle Eckfeldt, of Chestnut Hill, on September 2. Mrs. Ross announces that the ceremony will take place in Grace Church, Madison, at 4 o'clock, instead of in the Ross home, as originally planned.

Besides Virginia Doyle, of Sewickley, the bride's attendants will include her sister, Sally, as maid of honor, and Frank C. Eckfeldt will be his son's best man.

The ceremony will be very simple, to be followed by a reception in the garden.

Mildred is a graduate of the Timothy School for Young Women, Catonsville, Md., and her fiance is a Princeton man.

Golfers Active

The country clubs these days seem to be taking unto themselves an added zest, and whereas they were pretty well deserted by women members most of the summer, now almost any day the courses are filled with golfers. At the Allegheny Country Club and Longue Vue and Shannopin, women play on Tuesdays, at Fox Chapel Thursdays and at the Pittsburgh Field Club Fridays.

The Shannopin Country Club's women members are again having a monkey golf tournament, and it will be held on Tuesday. The event was so successful last year they decided to have it again. The golfers will each dig down in stored-away trunks to produce the most antiquated costume there, put it on, and sally forth as a belle of grandmother's or great-grandmother's day, to play the game so popular with Miss 1932. Some of the greens will be fixed trickily, too, and the players will have a hilarious afternoon.

The Pittsburgh Country Club announces a dinner dance for members on Saturday evening.

* * *

Travel Notes

And now for a bit of travel news. The Alexander Murdochs, of Squirrel Hill avenue, left yesterday for Philadelphia to visit Mr. Murdoch's sister and brother-in-law, the Robert Webster Joneses, formerly of Pittsburgh, for a few days, and later plan to go to Spring Lake.

Susan O'Neil is expected home from Medaumek, Me., Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Henry Chalfant has been in New York, at the Berkshire, and has gone to York Harbor, Me. The Howard A. Nobles have been Gotham visitors, too, and were registered at the Weylin Hotel during their sojourn.

Races at Hunt Club

The steeplechase races tomorrow on the Pittsburgh Hunt Club's new course will attract any number of folks. The officials in charge of the affair are announced today. John W. Lawrence and Col. George Cherrington are to be the stewards, and judges, George Paul, Torrence Miller and J. O. Burgwin; paddock judge, William Jack, and starter, George R. McNary, assisted by H. C. Bughman, Jr. Patrol judges will be E. C. Leslie, William B. Hamilton, Maj. E. L. Hubbard, Pete Martin, E. C. Bothwell and J. O. Flower.

A feature of the races will be a three-mile post and rail steeplechase over 17 timber jumps, for gentlemen riders. There will be two races for children, one a half-mile for ponies under 14 hands, and another of three-quarters of a mile for ponies over 14 hands. Mrs. Simon T. Patterson and John Beach will award the children's trophies, and purses will be the awards in the other events.

PARIS SAYS USE SEAMS SPARSELY AND ONLY AS DECORATION

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 26. — Make your frock with as few seams as possible, but let those few seams serve as decorations. This is one of the instructions that successful Paris dressmakers would give to all designers of women's clothes.

* * *

THE OLD days of plentiful cutting and sniping are gone as far as the Paris dressmaking world is concerned, and the really lovely dresses that come out of the French fashion circles are those which have been literally draped on the human figure, and made into practical frocks with the minimum of cutting and sewing.

* * *

THE FEW necessary seams in every frock are capitalized. Far from being disguised, they are very much in evidence. Extra stitchings let you know exactly where they are; piping is sometimes used to accent them further. They serve as lines and angles which decorate a dress, rather than mar it.

* * *

LYOLENE MAKES good use of the few seams on her red woolen dress in today's sketch. There is one straight line down the center-front and another at the center-back; the sleeves are in one with the sides. The diagonal opening is brought into relief by means of visible stitching.

* * *

RED-AND-WHITE checked silk, which faces the single rever and the back-collar, furnishes a motif for the design in the clip brooch fastened at the edge of the neckline.

* * *

Tourists to Make Trip To Observatory Week After Club Opens

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Titles that are possible of all sort of promising expansion have been assigned for the Tourists' program this year. The season is to open with president's day on October 3. On the 10th there's to be a visit to the Allegheny Observatory and then, as a sort of follow-up, a program will be given on the 17th on "The Magic of the Stars." Under this three papers will be presented—"A Talk With the Man in the Moon," "The Phantom of the Sky" and "Star Dust."

"Extraordinary Personalities" will include Lady Astor, Von Hindenburg and Mustapha Kemal. Mary Louise Succop is to talk on "Romantic Spain," a book review will make up one program and "Tales of the Sea," with some especially interesting sub-divisions, will bring the members up to the second half of their year.

Program For 1933

"The Wonderland of Science" is the caption for the first 1933 program. Mrs. Anna Marshall McCracken will talk on "The Art of India" and in the later months will come "Mysteries of the Animal Kingdom," "Strange Festival Days," "Astonishing Political and Religious Facts," "Myth and Fact," "Man Is a Queer Animal" and "Secrets of Easter Island, Lake Trinidad and the Aurora Borealis."

The spring musicale in March, a drama day program in charge of Mrs. J. Nesbit McDonald, and the June outing will give a wider variation to the year.

Carrick Girls Arrange Many Special Programs

A corn roast, a fashion show, a kid party, two bridge parties, a guest night, a bridge luncheon, a Salvation Army party and a mother and daughter banquet. Doesn't that sound like a nice year for the Girls' Auxiliary to the Mothers' Club of Carrick?

But these are only special affairs arranged in addition to the regular meetings, which begin September 6. President's night is October 6 and State Federation night is to be in November, with the southwestern juniors' chairman, Mrs. E. R. Davis, as speaker.

A welfare night in December, a program on famous women and another on "Melodies and Friends," a reciprocity meeting with other junior sections a night with magic, a meeting at which the seniors will be guests and the annual luncheon give an idea of the program character for the season.

Mrs. W. P. Cochran is president.

Jewish Council Bundle Party Aides Announced

Additional aides for the bundle party to be given Wednesday at the Schenley Hotel by the Council of Jewish Women include Mrs. Leo Shonfield, Mrs. Charles B. Buerger, Mrs. Morris Kaufman, Mrs. Jonas Adler, Mrs. Louis R. Jacobs, Mrs. Robert Averbach, Mrs. Robert Frank, Mrs. S. Hartstein, Mrs. Carrie Hirsch, Mrs. Louis Reizenstein, Mrs. Ira Cohen, Mrs. Julius Kimmelsteil, Mrs. Joseph Hecht and Mrs. Rebecca Brooks.

MYSTERY RADIO DRAMA -:- Serial Starts Tonight; Prizes for Solution -:- REISMAN, NICK LUCAS

'Phantom' Thriller On WCAE

Radio listeners who enjoy solving mysteries are offered plenty of entertainment and large cash awards as they follow "The Phantom of Crestwood," the first installment of which is presented tonight at 10:30 over a nation-wide network, including WCAE.

Adapted from the Radio Pictures' latest mystery production, the entire thriller, with the exception of the final chapter, will be broadcast in six weekly installments at the same hour. The cast includes Eunice Howard, Ned Weaver, Florence Malone, Richard Gordon, James Meighan, Marion Barney, Allyn Joslyn, Elsie Hitz, John McGovern, Helen Lowell and Dora Mathews.

Miss Howard

All listeners will be invited to write their own solution of the baffling story before the picture is released, and for the 100 best solutions, 100 cash prizes, starting with a first prize of $1,500, will be awarded. Judges include O. O. McIntyre, Montague Glass, Albert Payson Terhune, Peter B. Kyne and Julia Peterkin. All story endings are to be submitted to the Contest Editor, "The Phantom of Crestwood," Palace Theater Building, New York City.

The deafening crash of dynamite, the roar of TNT and the terrifying shriek of nitroglycerin are heard through KDKA tonight at 10:45 during a special program marking the birthday anniversary of Anton Laurent Lavoisier, who first discovered the principle of exact combustions in chemical reactions. The amount of explosives used in the radio experiment could be nestled upon the head of a pin, but the sound picked up by the sensitive microphone gives a true comparative picture to listeners.

New Song on Air
Boxing Tenor
Perkins' Degree

"Dance and Chase Away Those Depression Blues," a new number introduced by the Nite Club Orchestra over WCAE at 11 tonight, was composed by Miss Mae Hamilton, of Wilkinsburg . . . The McCravy Brothers, NBC Hearthside Singers from South Carolina, have been offered a contract to broadcast and make personal appearances in England, but can't face the idea of getting so far away from Southern cooking . . . Ray Perkins is one of the few people who attended a university, quit school before he finished his course—and got a degree anyway. Ray was a senior when war was declared, so he threw away his books to join the colors. Patriotically, the university gave him the coveted degree anyway.

Miss Hamilton

After listening to more than 50 of the best of the new songs Tin Pan Alley had to offer, the Three Keys selected one of their old favorites for their theme song. It's "Zonky," written by "Fats" Waller for a Broadway musical show.

Leo Reisman refuses to discuss his views on music with other directors because he says most of them never agree on musical interpretation . . . Buddy Rogers and James Melton just met the other day, but they're pals already . . . Donald Novis confesses that he did a lot of boxing in college and that he could take off 15 pounds and make the lightweight limit of 135 pounds.

Frank Luther and his wife, Zora Layman, are planning a program for fall broadcasting . . . Seven years ago Johnny Marvin, who has 11 guitars, was presented with a set of silver strings by a Montana mine operator and they're still on one of his instruments. The Men About Town are making a movie with Nat Shilkret called "Two Orphans."

Long's Sports Review WCAE Feature

An authoritative survey of athletics is presented from WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock when James J. Long, Sun-Telegraph expert, gives his weekly sports review.

With Pat Haley as master of ceremonies, stars of the Nite Club of the Air to be heard over WCAE at 11 include the Andrini Brothers, wizards of the strings; Betty Cruikshank, soprano, and Richard Koch.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, keeps WCAE listeners up-to-the minute on world happenings in his daily broadcasts at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

HOOVER'S RADIO TALK VETOED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(Universal.)—President Hoover today had been overruled on the broadcasting of his remarks opening the economic conference.

Broadcasting arrangements over both national hookups, announced Tuesday, were vetoed by Secretary of the Treasury Mills, chairman of the committee on arrangements of the conference.

Efforts on the part of officials of the Columbia Broadcasting Company to get Mills to reconsider his decision were fruitless. It was stated that the conference committee feared the broadcast might be misconstrued as a Republican political ballyhoo and be offensive to the Democratic business leaders invited to attend the conference.

Even after Mills and Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker, vice chairman of the committee on arrangements, decided against the broadcast, Lawrence Richey, private secretary to the President, said Mr. Hoover was anxious to have his speech go on the air, confident it would not be regarded as a political broadcast.

Mr. Hoover's talk had been scheduled today over WCAE and WJAS.

FAMOUS FLIERS 'TUNE UP' FOR RACE CLASSIC

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 26.—Aviation's great and near great gathered here today for tomorrow's opening of the National Air Races, 10 days of competitive flying now becoming the aero classic of the world.

Nearly 200 pilots, men and women, including an international foreign team picked as the best the old world has to offer, will carry out a program calculated to shove aerial speed a notch or two higher and present a record of flying of today at its best.

Henderson, manager of the races, reported an advance sale of approximately $75,000 worth of tickets. He predicted the stands would be packed throughout the program, winding up Labor Day with the real thriller of the races, the 100-mile Thompson trophy speed contest.

THRILLS PROMISED

As a spectacle, the 1932 races promised more thrills and color than its predecessors from the fact that the courses have been arranged this year so that the contesting planes are visible throughout the entire race. The 3-mile closed course has been worked out to give a real hair-raiser in the way of curves. It includes a 180 degree bank around a pylon right in front of the main grandstand.

More than a score of planes were on the field today, their pilots nursing them like new babies, and some of them looked as if they would give old speed records a quick grin and an au revoir.

This year for the first time, too, the airmen will get some competition in their own races from fast-flying women. Up to the present time the women have had races of their own. This year they can enter all races, and several of the best of them plan to take advantage of the new rule.

CROSS-COUNTRY RACES

The opening day will see the finish, at the race pylons before the grandstand, of at least three cross-country races, and, given good weather, perhaps of a fourth, the Nedix trophy race from Burbank, Cal., with $15,000 in prize money waiting for the victors.

The Cord Cup Derby, in which there were still three score contestants, will wind up around noon to open the air races. The fliers in this started on the West and East coasts, met in Oklahoma and will fight it out as one group into Cleveland.

Sportsmen pilots, flying for the William B. Leeds trophy from Roosevelt Field, and members of the Amateur Air Pilots' Association, in their second annual cross-country contest from New York, will also wind up here as the races open.

The first race before the grandstand will be run Sunday, for planes of 485 cubic inches displacement or less.

The international foreign team was having a grand time as a body, looking over the American planes and talking shop with American designers and fliers. Emil Kropf, the German stunting ace, tuned up his plane for his first performance, and R. L. R. Atcherly, the British pilot, who amazed spectators by his crazy looking antics in an airplane last year, was expected to check in tomorrow.

THE RECOMMENDED ROUTES TO THE NATIONAL AIR RACES

Motorists Warned About Campaign In Cleveland

The club recommends two routes, the shortest and best, 132 miles, by way of East Liverpool, Lisbon and Ravenna. Autoists are urged to observe carefully traffic laws in Cleveland, particularly in Maple Heights, a suburb, as a campaign against violations is on.

What's the Reason for this swing to Chesterfield

We believe it's Mildness and Better Taste

IF YOUR cigarette is mild—that is, not strong, not bitter, but smokes cool and smooth—then you like it and don't worry about how many you smoke.

If your cigarette tastes right; if it tastes better—that is, not oversweet; and if it has a pleasing aroma—then you enjoy it the more.

Everything known to Science is used to make Chesterfield Cigarettes milder and taste better and to give them a pleasing aroma.

First, the right kind of ripe, sweet leaf tobacco—Domestic and Turkish. Then these tobaccos are blended and cross-blended to make sure that Chesterfields are milder and better-tasting. That's why "They Satisfy." Give Chesterfields a trial. They are certain to please you.

"Music that satisfies." Every night but Sunday, Columbia Coast-to-Coast Network. 10 o'clock Eastern Daylight Time.

IT SAVED HER DAUGHTER

IT IS the daughter herself—Miss Rose Lama—who willingly gives the facts in a letter.

She says, "My mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was younger. But I wouldn't. If I had, I might have been a well girl now. I suffered terribly every month."

Finally the girls in her office convinced her. She tried it at last. Now she is on the way to greater health and happiness. Mothers—tell your daughters. And daughters—take your mother's advice. Suffering is unnecessary.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS BANKER

Stock market values prior to the recent upturn were as ridiculously low as they were ridiculously high before the crash in 1929, according to John A. Beattie, president of the John A. Beattie Company, investment bankers, speaking before a luncheon meeting yesterday of the Kiwanis Club in Fort Pitt Hotel.

Beattie scored the investor who plunges around investigating the stock he is about to buy. He said:

"Many investors will bicker hours over a piece of merchandise costing no more than $250, yet will invest thousands of dollars in a security on the recommendation of a friend that 'it looks good.'"

He said the stabilization of commodity prices, noticeably since July 8, was an important economic factor in the ultimate recovery of business.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

I'm getting annoyed listening to the local yokels who continuously prate about the past glories of Broadway . . . They bore you through the night into the yawning with their prattle about what the Grandest Canyon Used To Be and how little of it there is left . . . They swallow their brandy between gulps of reminiscences, and once these recallers get started, you're in for a good professional whine . . . They build up the glamour of Rectors and Churchills and Delmonicos and Mouquins until you begin to feel that you were born a few years too late to enjoy life and that the best thing you can do is to curl up and be sorry for your natal tardiness . . . I've listened to the best talkers of this fading generation for 10 years, and for a long time they had me crying with them . . . Every speakeasy bar became a wailing wall . . . "The old street isn't what it used to be . . . No sir! There's nothing left but orange juice hutches and cheap exhibitions of nude paintings and haberdasheries with eternal going-out-of-business sales . . . The theater is dead . . . The big stars are all working in Hollywood . . . The personality of a street that once was the cross-roads of the world has dwindled to that of side-show freakishness . . . Oh, well, it was too good to last for long . . . How about another brandy?" . . . That's the wail of the city-slicker . . . The fellow who refuses to recognize the years beyond 1921.

But the chorus is moaning low . . . Somebody put pennies on their eyelids and the money isn't big enough for them to pocket . . . So, they go through their life half-blinded . . . It is hard to feel the pulse of Broadway if you haven't a pulse of your own . . . And it's hard to know Broadway if you're going to limit it to a few buildings and side-streets . . . Or to the tawdry stores that line its pavements or to the ugly structures that hem it in . . . Or to the chiseling half-wits that comprise a good part of its every-day routines . . . Or to the down-at-the-heel bread-liners who have been shunted from city to city and finally wind up with the Big Crowd . . . But that isn't Broadway and never has been . . . The factor that these wailers miss entirely is that Broadway never was simply a street . . . Broadway is a state of mind, an attuning of one's self to the vast surge of forces that seethe for recognition . . . Broadway is New York, and therefore one of the most important creative centers of the world . . . The glamor of creation never ceases . . . It's only the lugs who waste their nights around the moaning-board who stop living.

If you want to know how alive the old stem is, let me introduce you to the young blood that comes pumping its way into the Main Artery every day . . . There's that little lass from New Orleans who galloped full-shod into town for two roaring weeks . . . She writes a gossip column in one of her local papers, and her idols are the big columnists of Broadway . . . Beneath the sophisticate brim of her hat there is a youthful face that longs for the steaming existence of New York . . . She isn't more than 21, but she has a keen sense of proportion and a fine understanding . . . "All I know about Broadway is what I have read and been told by those who visited here," she confessed. "This is my first trip, and I am plenty excited about it . . . And Broadway is just what I expected . . . Big, open, and full of promises that you have to collect . . . But I like it . . . It's glamorous. Why, after three days I feel as though someone had injected dynamite into my veins . . . I've read all about Broadway's past, and I've perused a thousand stories about the so-called death-knell which prohibition rang over its long trail . . . But to one who lives a thousand miles away, these dead pictures of the past mean nothing . . . You can't feel them any more, but you can feel the present scene . . . I doubt very much that Broadway means as much to you who live on it as it does to those who seldom or never get here . . . The glamor and influence of Broadway has seeped into every village in the country . . . Every novice composer and painter and writer is working to a goal that will bring him to recognition on your Main Stem. . . . Every Midwestern housewife looks to Broadway for her future romance . . . Why, if Broadway weren't the most alive spot in the world, it couldn't nurture the great army of widely-read New York columnists."

That's why I'm tired of listening to the dead heads who still consider themselves part and parcel of the street . . . The directions that Broadway travels change constantly, but there is no doubting that Broadway is relentlessly active . . . And restless, wholesomely restless . . . And out of its milling hordes new genius rises every day to astound the world . . . And with it comes new glamor.

But the street noises of Broadway . . . Now there's an entirely different subject! . . . Once you heard the general clatter of subway rumbles, automobile screeches and shrieking newsboys . . . And you were thrilled by its pitch and fever . . . But today a 10-minute stroll from the "L" crossing at Fifty-third down to Forty-second street leaves you limp with its meaningless cacophony . . . A swooping plane yells at you through its loud-speaker that Mumbo Cigarets are kind to your fingers . . . The beating of jungle tom-toms throb into your unsuspecting ear-drums as you pass Loew's State . . . A picture on its screen has Africa for the locale . . . Over that Forty-seventh street marquee you still look for the braying of papier-mache animals as they beat their tortuous ways through the massed foliage from a Forty-sixth street scenic studio . . . A hawker yells the secret wonders of his peep-show which you may now enter for 10 cents as compared with the 15-cent price of last week . . . A big inducement, indeed! . . . And I even heard a shop-keeper imploring a window-gazer to come inside and see the merchandise at closer range . . . This wasn't a particularly loud noise, but for one who has watched the actual physiognomy of the street disintegrate, it was sickening . . . That "Blessed Event" flicker is something to thrill about . . . It is magnificent magic . . . Lee Tracey gives the greatest performance of his career, and Warner Bros., are to be congratulated on the best portrait of a columnist.

Those street beggars are getting more and more demanding. . . . A social worker said yesterday that 95 per cent of the lads who stop you with a plea for enough to "buy something to eat" are phonies . . . And that there is no reason for men to beg on the streets for food because there are sufficient food-distributing agencies to feed them all . . . The chap who stopped me yesterday asked for $2 "for a meal" . . . I asked him why the ridiculous sum and he startled me with his reply . . . "You see I am pretty well-dressed, don't you?" he started, and when I nodded in amazement, he continued: "It is hard for me to get people to stop. Most of them think I am asking for a match or the direction, but when I spring the two-buck request they invariably come to a halt . . . And out of every 200 I approach, one comes through. . . . It's a lot easier than getting a dime from 20 people." . . . I'm anxious to read Charles Chaplin's tell-all story on his career . . . Someone called him the Shakespeare of the screen and I've always wanted to know what a Shakespeare does and thinks about . . . At any rate, regardless of what we say, I think we're always more interested in the fellow who goes so far we can never hope to touch him.

Hollywood's Famous Sons Follow in Fathers' Screen Steps

By HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 26.

The young fans of the screen are to have their innings.

At the same time, the second generation of Hollywood's actors is coming into its own.

Universal has decided to do a series of early western adventure films, glorifying the young pioneer. In this series, they will star Noah Beery, Jr.

Noah Beery, Jr.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., has signed Armand Schaefer to direct this series. He is working on the first story. Young Noah Beery will take up the role of the young frontiersman in about two weeks, when the first picture gets under way.

The decision to star Beery, Jr., came after his work in "Heroes of the West" and "Jungle Mysteries."

MIX BACK AGAIN

This series of early frontier thrillers is the second western company at work on the Universal lot. Tom Mix recently fixed his signature of six more hoof symphonies.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., is going in for the young idea in full force. In addition to an original story now in preparation for Andy Devine, optional contracts have been awarded three other young players.

They are Theodore Hecht, who came out to take tests for "Laughing Boy." Earl McCarthy and Carlton Kadell, a Broadway stage juvenile.

With these three new names, the young Universal executive is building up a strong juvenile stock company.

It might have been to make Boris Karloff feel more at home. But at any rate, the property man put in an order for 20 mummy cases for a scene in "The Mask of Fu Manchu."

The order calling for 20 sarcophagi, got crosstracked to the man in charge of the animal barn. He reported back, "I've got rattlesnakes, tarantulas, and lizards, but I've never heard of that reptile sarcophagi."

BOULEVARD CHATTER

Friends of Renee Adoree are preparing to welcome her back to Hollywood Sunday, in good health again . . . George O'Brien left an Indian horse, with a feather in its tail, outside the Fox publicity offices, while he showed them his war chief's costume . . . Interesting fellow at Vine street intersection offers anti-repeal windshield stickers for 10 cents. If you say you are for repeal, he drags out one for that, too . . . On a table at one of the night clubs they are using match-folds of a local mortuary . . . Cliff Edwards is in town for Bill Haines' "Let's Go" . . . Harry Rapf is seeing friends at Malibu after his illness . . . Robert Montgomery goes to work again next week after his hospital siege . . .

Another casualty, Conrad Nagle is limping around following his auto accident. . . . Saw Antonio Moreno lunching at the same table at Fox with Thelma Todd . . . Will Rogers, at lunch, still running those Olympic sprints . . . A mosquito bite on the eye keeps Helen Hayes out of "Farewell to Arms" for a day . . . Charlotte Susa, M-G-M's foreign importation, sat for her first studio portraits yesterday . . . Fanchon Royer, Hollywood's sole woman producer, begins "Heart Punch" with Lloyd Hughes and Marion Schilling in the cast.

The American girl in "The Mask of Fu Manchu" will be played by Karen Morley.

Her serene personality will be contrasted in the story with the exotic role of the oriental girl as played by Myrna Loy.

Movie Talent Massed In 'State Fair'

Sally Eilers, Robert Montgomery, Phillips Holmes, Spencer Tracy and Louise Dresser have been massed into an aggregation of talent to appear with Janet Gaynor and Will Rogers in "State Fair," the Fox screen version of Phil Stong's popular novel, directed by Henry King.

Life Tragedy Shown at Fulton

By JAMES A. BAUBIE

All those secret passions, those tempests of grief that were hinted at in the newspapers during a famous Pennsylvania murder trial within the past year come to life in an original screen play, "Unashamed," which opened in the Fulton yesterday.

Remember? The plot is like this:

A charming daughter of a millionaire falls in love with a young scamp who wants only her money. The father refuses his consent, so the daughter and the scamp get a room for the night in a hotel, then approach the father the next morning in the hope that he will order them to get married. During this scene the brother enters and shoots the "other man" to save his sister's honor.

At the trial the boy's life is in the hands of his sister, whose love for her brother has turned to hate.

Helen Twelvetrees is pretty and human in the role of the sister. Robert Young at times convinces one that he is headed toward stardom, so appealing is he as the brother.

But perhaps the most interesting bit of acting takes place in the court room between Lewis Stone as the defense attorney and John Miljan as the prosecutor. These two actors, with no ostentation, bring to the screen honest portrayals of two different types of legal pleading.

The story is woven about the sister's love and hate for her brother. The first half of the picture has a tendency to overplay this fraternal emotion.

Director Harry Beaumont deserves a breath of praise for his common sense in removing a great deal of the usual melodrama from his picture. Such emotion as is depicted comes naturally. There is not even the usual whirlwind scene when the jury's verdict is returned, this time-worn scene being supplanted by a "shot" of the crowd leaving the court room commenting on the verdict. Just shows what can be done with an old situation.

Those who remember the actual story as reported by the press of the nation will have a fair idea of how the screen play ends. But even for them, the picture will maintain its interest to the finish, with the ultimate verdict always in doubt.

Robert Warwick deserves a post-cinema mention of his own. He plays the part of the father, and actually acts like a very very considerate parent, reacting to his family tragedy much as any well bred father would react.

Gridiron Stars Cast In Lyon Film

Headliners of both move studio and football field will be seen when "Rackety Rax" is produced at Fox Movietone City by Director Alfred Werker. Victor McLaglen will play one of the chief roles in the production and the cast already includes Ben Lyon, Irving Pichel, Greta Nissen, Allan Dinehart, Alan Jenkins, Dewey Robinson and Vince Barnett.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"DEAR MARK:" writes Charlie Crosland, "In your wanderings around this town of ours, have you ever noticed that Gypsy restaurant on Fifth avenue, where large letters on the window invite you to 'Come In And Make a Wish'? There are several imitations of the spot around the city, but I believe that this Fifth avenue place was the original one.

"At any rate, I have an actor friend who hasn't been employed in some time. He has been growing leaner and hungrier with each passing day, and his only consolation rests in the fact that he has plenty of company. While walking up the avenue the other afternoon, he passed this Gypsy restaurant and looked through the window with longing eyes.

"The large sign caught his attention. 'Come In and Make a Wish.' He looked at it curiously. Then, snapping his fingers, he walked into the place and took a table near the door.

"The waitress handed him a menu. Hungry as he was, he still maintained his dignity.

"'An attractive menu, my dear,' he asserted. 'Your organization is to be complimented. I think I will start off today with a shrimp cocktail. The shrimps are very fresh, I take it?"

"'Yes, indeed,' returned the girl.

"'Good,' exclaimed the actor. 'I enjoy fresh shrimps very greatly. In fact, I think you might bring me a double order.

"'After the shrimps, I will have a plate of your special vegetable soup.

"'Following my soup I want a sirloin steak smothered in onions. Come to think of it, you might make that a double steak. A sirloin is always better as a double steak. Have it medium rare, if you will, and bring me a lettuce and tomato salad at the same time. And oh, yes, I'll have some corn saute with my meat."

"The girl's eyes were beginning to pop. My friend put down the menu and smiled again.

"'That will be all for the present,' he said. 'I will order my dessert later.'

"As the meal arrived, the actor stowed it away in rapid fashion. The food disappeared as if by magic. Ten minutes after he had begun, his huge meal was completed. He ordered some pastry and coffee, and he was just lingering over his coffee when a dark girl came over to his table.

"She was attired in the conventional gypsy raiment and she made an attractive picture as she stood before him.

"'Ave you made your weesh, mistaire?' she asked.

"The actor straightened.

"'Have I what?' he replied.

"The girl waved an expressive hand.

"'Thees is the Gypsy restaurant, sir,' she returned. 'Those who eat here are entitled to a weesh. 'Ave you made yours?'

"My friend nodded suddenly.

"'Yes,' he said. 'I had forgotten all about it. But it's all right now. I just made my wish.'

"'Good,' exclaimed the gypsy girl. 'And what is your weesh?'

"The actor's gaze grew dreamy.

"'I wish,' he murmured softly, 'that I had the dough to pay for this meal!'" . . .

"SEVERAL years ago," writes Joe B., from Syracuse, "an evening paper in New York went into an extensive advertising campaign concerning the merits of its sporting staff. The thing took place during the football season and ads all urged the readers to get into the games with the reporters.

"'Get into the actual play with Whoozis,' was the general idea of the ads. 'Whoozis is in every scrimmage that takes place on the field. Whoozis is in action when that pass is thrown. Get into the actual game by reading Whoozis.'

"In the middle of this great campaign, one of the star reporters was sent to cover a very important game. He wired his stuff for the first period—but stopped in the middle of the second. The sporting editor grew frantic in his home office and dispatched a wire, demanding to know the trouble immediately. A few minutes later his answer arrived:

"'Can't write any more today, boss,' was the laconic response. 'I broke both arms in that last play!'" . . .

"JOHN WILLIAMS was a young doctor," writes that excellent contributor, Leonard Lyons, "who was stationed at a mid-western penitentiary. He had studied medicine in a small, unsung, southern medical school—but he had always felt that the man and not the school was the thing.

"He assimilated all that the school could give him and, armed with his diploma and degree, sauntered forth to add his brilliance to the medical world.

"Necessity, however, was a cruel master—and he soon found himself as the resident doctor of the aforementioned penitentiary. While the salary left plenty to be desired, he found ample opportunity to continue his research work in the one thing in which he intended to specialize—the human brain.

"Well, Mark, in making the rounds one day, he discovered that one of the inmates was suffering from a brain disease that would allow the doctor to apply some of the principles he had been advocating. He spoke to the warden about it and, after a convincing argument, succeeded in getting permission to operate.

"Came the patient. Came the day. And there in the darkened, inadequate operating room of the prison, he felt that genius was born. It was one of the most delicate operations known to the medical world. Williams was highly elated. The patient had come through successfully, and gave promise of complete recovery.

"Williams eagerly continued his research. He made the most minute notes. He was aware of nothing but the fact that he was recording something that would emblazon his name forever in medical annals.

"A week later, Williams made his rounds of the infirmary. Soon he came to the bed that was occupied by his prize patient. A light gleamed in his eyes, for he was prepared to commence the most serious part of his work—the determination of the extent of the effects of his operation. He looked into the bed. It was empty!

"Williams stormed and raged. Who had permitted this patient to be removed; this patient who had undergone one of the most remarkable operations ever performed? Where was this patient whose whose life would be prolonged many years because of this operation? Where was this patient, who, in his recovery, would be a living symbol of Williams' surgical mastery? Where was he?

"He asked the nurse. She said she didn't know. Williams rushed to the warden's office. He stormed in. Where was his prize patient?

"The warden looked up.

"'Thought you knew all about it, doc,' he replied casually. 'He was electrocuted last night!'"

Stars Admit 'Jitters'

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 26.—If you are an amateur actor or actress, and suffer from stage fright, don't worry, because even the most experienced screen stars have the stage-fright jitters during the first few days of production of a motion picture.

The symptoms, as explained by Cooper, who hunted lions in Africa during the winter, include sudden and unexplained brow perspiration, an inability to sit still for even a minute, a desire to pace rooms, pick up magazines, read a paragraph and toss them away, dream about the picture and fears that they would give poor performances.

ADMITS KILLING FOR $500

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Police said today the four-month-old slaying of Mrs. Alex Wysocki, wife of a meat market proprietor, had been solved by the confession of Ira Sams that Wysocki paid him $500 to kill his wife in a bogus holdup attempt.

Wysocki, Sams and three witnesses were arrested. Mrs. Wysocki was slain as she rode with her husband in their automobile by a man who leaped on the running board of the car.

Sams said Wysocki paid him the $500 in instalments after the slaying.

Florence Marsh, former cashier in Wysocki's meat market; Elmer Emper, said to be a blind pig operator, and Marie Lewis, friend of Emper, were held as witnesses. Police said they were friends of Sams.

Railroader Loses His Five Jobs All At Once

ST. PAUL, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Henry Bonniwell, of Deer River, is going to lose a lot of jobs tomorrow; five of them to be exact.

The management of the Minneapolis and Rainy River Railroad says it simply can't go on operating at a loss its 63 miles of track built in 1890 to tap a lumber stand. A court writ has been obtained preventing the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission from interfering with abandonment of the line.

WINS NEW TRIAL IN 'GIRL MART'

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Olive Clark Day, convicted in Los Angeles on charges in connection with a "girl market" case there, won a new trial yesterday in the State Supreme Court.

Mrs. Day had asked the Appellate Court to reverse the Superior Court's refusal of a new trial, contending she had been held in a hotel under guard without a warrant from February 25 to March 2. It was contended this amounted to coercion and made her confession valueless as evidence.

Mrs. Day is on bail of $2,500, having been sentenced to serve one year in the Los Angeles County Jail. The state charged Mrs. Day ran a "market" from which girls were obtained for parties.

LUCKY BUCK DAY BREAKS RECORD AT KENNYWOOD

Thousands Pack Park; Emergency Passes By Trolleys

This is Sun-Telegraph Lucky Buck Day at Kennywood—the day when Lucky Bucks clipped from this newspaper can be used as real money for the rides ad amusement devices.

From the latest reports it is evident that the attendance is the largest in the history of the park—far beyond the anticipation of the Sun-Telegraph or park management. The traffic department of the Pittsburgh Railways Company says that it has never before known anything like it in the history of the company.

CROWD COMES EARLY

At 11 o'clock this morning the crowd of children that had arrived at the park numbered no less than 5,000, and they were still coming in droves. The street car company had to put on extra equipment early in the day.

In the meantime Manager McSwigan, of Kennywood, had to put on extra help and nothing was left undone that would contribute to the comfort and entertainment of the thousands and thousands of kiddies out there.

The supply of 15,000 street car passes that had been printed for Lucky Buck Day began to run out towards noon and the street car company immediately notified all conductors to sell baseball passes in place of Lucky Buck passes and honor them all evening instead of up to 7 o'clock. It happened that baseball passes had been issued for today and could be used for this emergency.

LUCKY BUCKS POPULAR

It is a known fact that some of the youngsters went out to Kennywood with as high as 500 and 1,000 tickets Lucky Bucks. It was just for this condition that a rule was made that they could only cash Lucky Bucks for two tickets at any one time, but they could come back to any one of the 16 exchange booths and get two additional tickets as often as they wanted to. This was deemed advisable to keep the crowds of youngsters moving freely and to avoid the possibility of any boy or girl getting more tickets than they could possibly use.

Yes, the crowd was far greater than the Sun-Telegraph anticipated, but from all reports the youngsters are having a great day spending their Lucky Bucks.

UNION REFUSES TO DISCUSS ISSUES

Pacts Cited in Dispute Halting Work on New Federal Building

Arbitration of the issues involved in the strike of hoisting engineers on Pittsburgh's new postoffice building has been offered by the Building Trades Employers Association, the other party in the dispute.

The offer, made in a statement by F. O. Reed, secretary of the association, declares that the postoffice dispute involves a matter of deep importance to labor throughout the nation, because in it the union attempts to control the production of materials.

The employers have named their arbitrators, J. L. Mullen, W. P. Trimble, Jr., and John Geffel, and have asked the union to do likewise and been refused, Reed stated.

REFUSES TO ARBITRATE

Peter J. Dagnall, business agent of the union, has confirmed this stand on several occasions. He said recently to newspapermen:

"The agreement is perfectly plain. There is nothing to arbitrate."

Reed quotes a section from an agreement with the union providing for arbitration as follows:

"There shall be no cessation of work for any cause except where non-union men are employed. Should any dispute or misunderstanding arise, the same shall be referred to a joint arbitration committee."

The sand and gravel companies are not members of the employers' association and so not "under the control" of the association, Reed declares.

AGREEMENT CITED

A section of the agreement with the union also provides, according to Reed, as follows:

"There shall be no restriction in the use of any raw or manufactured material except prison-made."

The Chamber of Commerce, through its president, Thomas A. Dunn, has demanded from the contractor and labor officials that work be resumed. He said:

"If I am correctly informed, the union is taking an entirely different attitude toward the postoffice job than toward other big contracts in the city."

D. G. Aronberg, president of the Aronberg-Fried Company, postoffice contractors, has issued a statement admitting that he, with Col. James Francis Dewey and Murray Garson, of the United States Department of Labor, told Dagnall that a letter written by Reed for the Employers' Association gave Dagnall "everything he asked for."

DEMANDS HELD GRANTED

Aronberg's statement reads:

"The letter from the Pittsburgh Building Trades Employers' Association, signed by Mr. Reed as secretary and addressed to Dagnall, was handed to him by Messrs. Garson and Dewey, of the Department of Labor, and I was called in while Dagnall was reading it.

"Mr. Dagnall previously had dictated the letter to Mr. Dodds, my attorney, and when we handed him the letter we explained to him that it was an exact submission of what he had dictated except for the addition of one phrase at the end of the letter.

"We called Mr. Dagnall's particular attention to this additional phrase and told him that in our opinion this did not change, in any regard, the letter he had dictated.

"We further advised him that, in our opinion, this letter granted him everything he asked for."

How Can We Ever Get the Farmers Back to Farms?

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

He told the Germans the way to win was to fight. If Bill is going to pull a come-back we will match him up with the Ioway farmers.

They slapped sixty farmers into the Council Bluffs jail. It's getting tough when you can't even go to town any more.

The boys are campaigning for dollar wheat in their own rough, manly way. They grabbed baseball bats, clubs and Stilson wrenches to go to town and do a little diversified farming.

They won the first battle of Pottawatomie from the sheriff and his deputies. The boys wrassled all over Ioway and proved the man is a liar who said the next war was going to be fought in the air.

TROOPER RODEO ASKED HERE

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 26.—Pennsylvania's state troopers, who yesterday in their annual rodeo here thrilled 10,000 with spills, daring riding and jumping, and shooting, today found they had an invitation to put on next year's show in South Park, Allegheny County.

Col. C. C. McGovern, Allegheny County Commissioner, was one of the spectators. He said today he invited Maj. Lynn Adams, superintendent of the state police, to put on his rodeo in Pittsburgh next August.

Adams, McGovern said, tentatively agreed.

Former Govs. John K. Tener and John S. Fisher, Mrs. Cyrus Woods, State Senator William Rial, Superior Court Judge Joseph Stadtfeld and many other political figures attended. Also swelling the throng were the marchers in the Elks' parade, which, closing the fraternity's four-day convention, preceded the rodeo.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BISHOP, Cal., Aug. 26.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Ten years ago this was a wonderful valley with one-quarter of a million acres of fruit and alfalfa.

Will Rogers

But Los Angeles had to have more water for the Chamber of Commerce to drink more toasts to its growth. More water to dilute its orange juice, and to water its geraniums for the tourists while the giant cottonwoods here died. So now this is a valley of desolation, but wherever you find privation and oppressed people, you find Democrats always bucking the giant octopus. Last night the local Democrats held a rally. Everybody in town, including the lone Republican (who, of course, is postmaster), attended. He agreed to change his politics in return for his present office. It was unanimously passed. All adjourned. The politics is settled here for the next four years.

Yours, WILL.

Jap-U. S. War Foreseen By Often-Jailed Prophet

Prophet Jonas B. Israel was preaching in the downtown market district yesterday, foretelling a great war threatening America and Japan. He collected 47 cents from a crowd which listened sympathetically to his tale of troubles.

Garbed in flowing white robes, bearing staff, banner and trumpet, according to prophecies in Ezekiel and Joel, Jonas said he hoped the dream wasn't true in which he had seen Japanese and American forces in battle. But he was fearful; he has been right so often before.

Jonas was serving in a cavalry regiment in 1895, when a revelation struck and blinded him for a time. But not until 1914 did he don his robes, and prophesy the World War through the streets of Washington, March 11. He was arrested for insanity, and later escaped. Now 63 years old, he has been in jail 59 times, once here, where they gave him a cell instead of the license to preach he was applying for. He has been a gold prospector and raiser of ginseng and other herbs. He is now hitchhiking back to his home, Elk Garden, W. Va., where he will try to make money and preach more.

AMELIA BLIND TO PERIL OR GLORY IN RECORD FLIGHT

TRANS-U. S. HOP STORY TOLD BY AVIATRIX

By JEANETTE SMITS
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Amelia Earhart never thought of thrills or perils, or even the glory of her achievement, while she sped eastward to engrave her name upon a new page of aviation history, as the first woman to complete a nonstop solo flight across the continent.

When she wasn't occupied with the mechanics of flying, America's premier aviatrix took time to enjoy the breath-taking beauty of the changing landscape, she said today, resting at her home in Rye, N. Y., after the strenuous ordeal of her epochal journey.

VIEW OF NATION

Running a slim, capable hand through her tousled mop of golden-brown curls, she said:

"It was stupendous!

"First, the glowing sunset. Then the moon and the stars. The beacon lights, flashing over the sleeping countryside. The little towns spread out beneath me, unconscious that I was looking down on them from the sky. I seemed to have gained a sweeping, comprehensive view of the entire nation in that flight.

"Sometimes I think the sheer, esthetic appreciation of beauty keeps fliers in the air, just as it draws sailors to the sea. This standpoint is never emphasized because aviators, like most of the human race, are inarticulate. They don't quite know how to express their emotions."

The blue-eyed "First Lady of the Air," charmingly clad in blue lounging pajamas, which harmonized with the decorations of the tastefully furnished living room, showed no effects of the strain she must have undergone during the 19 hours and 5 minutes of her flight.

AIM OF FLIGHT

She chatted vivaciously about the tomato juice which had been her sole nourishment, the chicken sandwich and the hot chocolate which she had taken along, only to ignore because they didn't appeal to her. But she persisted, as always in making light of her accomplishment. She said:

"I didn't set out to beat Capt. Hawks' record. I merely wanted to show that a woman could fly across the continent without stopping. I wanted to keep the ball rolling. If I succeeded in persuading other women fliers to follow the trail I shall be satisfied."

For the time being Mrs. Putnam will rest upon the laurels of her solo trans-Atlantic and trans-continental records, she confided. She'll devote herself to her voluminous correspondence, her public speaking activities, the management of her household and the companionship of her devoted husband, George Palmer Putnam.

JUDGES TO BAN POLITICS OVER WALSH POST

Politics will have nothing to do with the appointment of the First Ward constable to succeed Paul Walsh, son of the police superintendent, Judge George V. Moore told five applicants in court yesterday. Only five of the seven seeking the job appeared, and Judge Moore announced the others would be heard next Thursday.

Judge Thomas M. Marshall sat with Judge Moore to hear the applicants. The appointment was delayed a week when Judge Moore said that a late application had been received Wednesday but he did not know by whom it was presented or in whose behalf it had been offered.

Those who appeared yesterday were Andrew Maloney, city detective; James McDonald, employe of the Fire Prevention Bureau; William Duncan, deputy constable; Frank Cassilli, and Frank P. McCloskey, former prize fighter. Leo Dunn, assistant county custodian, who also had filed application, was unable to appear and will present his case next week. It is believed that the seventh man seeking the job is Theodore McGuire, a retired fire captain.

Walsh resigned three weeks ago in hope of gaining a parole following his conviction in a vote conspiracy case.

Redell, Prima Donna, Former Hotel Waitress

Singer Reds Seek as Soloist Tells of Hardships

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Emma Redell, prima donna, whose selection as soloist for Russian symphony orchestras was announced yesterday, once waited on table in a Boston hotel to earn money for singing lessons, friends recalled here.

Before that, she worked as a stenographer in Washington, D. C., in 1924. She came to New York to get instruction and worked as night clerk in a music store.

She took the waitress job in Boston because her teacher had gone there for the summer, and she didn't want to stop her lessons. When the hotel manager learned of her ambition and her talent, he offered to let her sing to the tables instead of waiting on them. She declined, saying she "wasn't ready yet."

Still very poor, she went to Germany the next winter, continued her studies and made a lonely debut. She had no friends to send flowers or heap praises. She said:

"After the performance, I went home to my bedroom, made myself some supper on an alcohol stove and went to bed."

Since her American debut in Carnegie Hall in 1929, her career has been consistently successful. She has been with Chicago Civic Opera Company since 1930, when she appeared in Lohengrin. She is known especially for her interpretation of Wagnerian roles.

The announcement of her invitation to sing in Russia was made for Albert Coates, director general of the all-Soviet orchestras, who sailed for Europe Wednesday.

DONNAN ESTATE REFUND UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday held the estate of John W. Donnan, president of the Citizens National Bank of Washington, Pa., was entitled to a refund of $48,034 from the government.

The court found Donnan, who was 83 years old, was not "contemplating" death when he established a $1,700,000 trust fund for his four children less than two years before his death.

He died December, 1928. The government valued the estate at $2,241,898, and assessed a deficiency tax of $226,067 against it. This included tax on the trust fund and also on advances of $32,500 he had made to his son, Sidney, shortly before his death. These were not included by the trustees in their report to the government, which showed a gross estate of $1,173,987 for taxation.

The decision affirms the action of the Federal Court at Pittsburgh which recently ruled Donnan enjoyed good health and activity in business up to the time of his last illness disproved the contention of the government that he felt his death was near when he made the trust fund and the advances to his son.

Two of them, Andrew Claudia, 34, and William Burke, 26, of Braddock, admitted they were pickup men, who collected the slips from writers. The third, Andrew Dureka, 32, of Braddock, testified he simply drove the car.

Magistrate John J. Sweeney fined them $25 each.

PITTSBURGHERS OPEN FIGHT FOR CUT IN COAL RATE

RECEIVERSHIP HELD FACING RAILROAD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—W. S. Bronson, general counsel for the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad today told the Interstate Commerce Commission suspension board, he "didn't see how" the Pittsburgh and West Virginia "could keep out of the hands of the receivers" if not permitted to reduce its coal rates from the Pittsburgh district to Cleveland, Lorain and Huron.

Bronson made the statement at a hearing on the Pittsburgh and West Virginia's application to restore a differential of 10 cents a ton between rates from Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania to the lake port cities.

The rates would not affect lake cargo tonnage.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Bronson said, applied for the reduction after the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad on August 1 reduced its rates from Ohio No. 8 coal district, in Eastern Ohio, to the lake cities.

Western Pennsylvania shipments to those cities, he said, had fallen off until they were negligible since the new Wheeling and Lake Erie tariffs, approved by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission, became effective.

SPANISH REVOLT HEAD GETS LIFE

MADRID, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The ranking general of Spain, Jose San Jurio, was reported en route by automobile today to El Dueso Penitentiary in Santander province to serve a life sentence for rebellion against the republic.

Although authorities declined to comment, it was understood that a secret transfer from Madrid had been suddenly ordered in the hope of averting further disorder.

Nevertheless disorders occurred in various parts of the nation, and there were reports that a cabinet realignment was not beyond the range of possibilities.

The disturbances were provoked by the Supreme Court's sentence of death against the general yesterday, and almost immediate commutation by the government.

Communists at Bilbao and nearby Gallarta protested against the government's leniency. In an ensuing clash with civil guards, one Communist was reported slain and several injured.

DEMOCRATS SEE STATE VICTORY

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Warren Van Dyke, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, said at a rally last night that the Democratic party in November has the best opportunity in history of carrying Pennsylvania. He declared:

"With the state Public Service Commission scandal, Senator James J. Davis under indictment on lottery charges, Senator Joseph Grundy taking no active part in the national campaign and the Republican party giving no relief for unemployed or taxpayers at the last regular and special Legislature sessions, I believe the people are tired of Republican rule and want a change."

He charged the Hoover administration with conducting affairs of government on a "big business" and "favored few" plan and said there can be no prosperity until the masses are getting a living.

LED TO 'MOON' BY BLIND MAN

It was a case of the blind leading the seeing to Hill district mooney joints, it was testified in Morals Court today.

Charles Law, 32, blind, of 418 Third avenue, and Carl Long, 30, of Carnegie, whom Law had employed to lead him, were arrested yesterday charged with vagrancy. They were turned over to welfare workers.

Long told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg that he does not know the location of a speakeasy in Pittsburgh. He said that after Law had begged money on downtown streets he followed Law's directions in leading him to speakeasies. Police said both were intoxicated when arrested. Long, it was testified, has a wife and three children in destitute circumstances.

'Adams Denounced For 'Lending' Bands

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Renewing its protest against the use of the Marine Band at the Hoover notification ceremonies, the American Federation of Musicians suggested that Secretary Adams felt no real sympathy for "the man who struggles for a living."

Joseph N. Weber, president of the federation, in a letter to Adams yesterday, said in 100 instances he had permitted the Navy Department to furnish music free to the very wealthy, thus taking from jobless musicians a means of livelihood.

Onion Is a Nutritive and Inexpensive Food

It Is Classified by Food Authorities as a Valuable Anti-scorbutic Food

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., PH. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

Food economies must be practiced in every household. Foods that are low in price and high in nutritive value must be selected. Among such is the onion. Most housewives are familiar with this vegetable, of course, yet some of them overlook the variety of ways in which the onion may be used.

This valuable vegetable may be served boiled, fried, baked, escalloped or creamed. It may be used to flavor foods, either in cooking or in uncooked combinations. The young green onion may be eaten raw, as a relish.

When the onion is cooked in a large amount of water, part of the oil contained in the onion is dissolved and passes off as vapor. This leaves the cooked vegetable with a milder flavor.

The strong flavor of the onion is due to the presence of an acrid oil. This oil is rich in sulphur and gives the onion its characteristic odor.

MANY VARIETIES

There are many varieties of onion. The most common are white, silverskin, yellow, red and others of different names. The flavor and excellence of the vegetable depend upon the size, shape, flavor and season. Good grades can be purchased in any size or color, the choice depending on individual taste. Some prefer the big Bermuda onion, while others will only eat the small size vegetable. The Spanish onion is most popular. It is of small size, mild and sweet.

Onions grown in the southern part of the United States are tempting and have a pleasing flavor. When grown in warm climates they are milder and sweeter than those grown in colder climates.

Many of us enjoy the onion without realizing its high nutritive value. Onions rank high in vitamin C and contain a moderately rich supply of vitamins A and B.

PREVENTS SCURVY

The food authorities classify the onion as a valuable "anti-scorbutic" food. This means that the raw onion possesses sufficient Vitamin C to prevent scurvy. Scurvy is caused by a lack of vitamin C in the diet. I am not speaking of the old-fashioned scurvy, now, but the lack of "pep" and "ginger" which may come from wrong eating, really a type of scurvy.

The onion contains about 91 per cent water. The balance is made up of a sweet, starchy flesh, containing many important mineral substances.

The European peasant fortifies himself against hard work by eating plenty of hard bread and raw onion. Onions are eaten in Europe much as we eat raw apples. In France, onion soup is considered a nourishing, delicious and economical dish. This soup has recently gained great popularity in this country.

The onion is a valuable vegetable. It should be used frequently when other vegetables are scarce and expensive. Fortunately, the onion may be obtained throughout the year. It is indeed an inexpensive food and a great aid in providing a well-balanced and economic budget.

Can 16-Year-Old Youngsters Find Real Love?

Should youngsters in high "go steady," and cut out all other friends?

Ted and Palma, aged 16, think they should, and THEY'RE CONVINCED THE FOLKS ARE OLD MEANIES BECAUSE THEY OBJECT.

"We both of us KNOW that it's real love!" sobs Palma, telling us about it.

Can that be true? Can love be real and lasting—at 16?

Dear Sally Martin:

I wonder if you can't help out a couple of kids who have a problem, and who are having plenty of arguments with their folks about it. We're coming to you because we think you're modern and know about things like that, and will tell us what's what; and we fear our folks are very old-fashioned.

It's love.

Ted and I are both 16, and we have known each other since we both wore rompers. We are both in high school, second year, and ready for our third next fall. For the last two years we have been going around a lot together, though we did sometimes go to parties and proms with other people; but now we find ourselves taking each other very seriously. IN FACT, WE ARE GOING TOGETHER STEADY, and that's what all the argument is about.

Our folks not only say "it is ridiculous," but tell us we can't do it. They didn't pay much attention when Ted used to carry my books home for me, and take me to the school parties, and come to parties I gave now and then. But of course there were a lot of the other kids around, too, so I guess they didn't notice how we were most always together, everywhere we went. Anyway, now they HAVE noticed it—I guess it's because the other boys don't come over to see me like they used to, on account of knowing I am Ted's girl.

PARENTS DISAPPROVE

NOW THEY ARE TELLING US THAT WE CAN'T SEE EACH OTHER AT ALL, IF WE ARE "GOING TO BE SO SILLY." His folks are just as bad as mine. Not that they don't like me. They do. They've always been sweet to me. But they don't want us to be serious. They seem to think that because we're just kids, IT CAN'T BE REAL LOVE.

But we both know it IS. We're just crazy about each other, and it just breaks our hearts to be treated like babies who don't know their own minds.

So won't you please help us to make them see things our way? What can we do to convince them? Or should we go out with other people, when we're not happy unless we're together?

Don't YOU think it can be real love, even if we are only 16? And why are older people like that? PALMA.

IDEAS WILL CHANGE

Well, MAYBE, youngster—but not likely. No, I don't mean that either of you are fickle. I don't mean that it may not seem the most real and most lovely thing on earth. But I DO mean that both of you are still growing; AND AS YOU GROW, YOU WILL CHANGE—AND YOUR IDEAS AND YOUR FEELINGS ARE ALMOST CERTAIN TO CHANGE WITH YOU.

So four years from now, when you are a young woman and he is a young man, YOU MAY FIND THAT YOU'RE AS FAR APART AS THE POLES. It won't be your fault, and it won't be anything that either of you can help.

That's why your folks are "like that." They have lived through love themselves. They have seen others live through it. And they don't want to see you spoil your chances of finding bigger romance than the young love you're ready for now.

So give life and yourselves a chance, youngsters. Have lots of fun; but have it with lots of people. Then, if this is really the love of a lifetime, it will still be with you a couple of years from now. And if it isn't—well, you won't have locked yourself out from the big show.

Brazen Pryers Into Personal Affairs Can Be Foiled, Fay King Says

YOU WERE THERE?
NO - BUT A FRIEND OF MINE HAS A FRIEND WHO WAS THERE AND SHE TOLD ME ABOUT IT!
I DON'T REMEMBER
YOU MUST EXCUSE ME, BUT I NEVER DISCUSS HIM WITH ANYONE!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

When we see how much the principal in a case "can not remember," when being cross-examined in a court room before a judge and jury, it certainly gives us the courage to "forget" conveniently when being quizzed by curious persons.

No one has a right to pump anyone about their private affairs. If some are brazen enough to ask questions, be brave enough to refuse an answer.

There is much that one can learn from court proceedings. For instance, nothing one "thinks" or "supposes" or has "heard from the friend of a friend" counts in the least as evidence. Only what one actually knows, or has actually seen.

This applied to private life could avoid so much heartache and misery caused by careless conversation.

Hints for the Household

Well-equipped bathrooms are wearing lipstick towels. They're small squares of red linen. Some of them are embroidered, "for your lipstick."

Don't forget the tiny bouquet of flowers for the bedroom of the week-end guest while you are out in the garden cutting for the rest of the house. It gives a little welcoming touch to the room.

Every housewife should consider part of her household equipment enough house dresses that she may change to a clean one at any time she considers the one in which she has worked requires it. It does not add to the morale of the woman to be afraid to go to the door just because her dress is soiled. Change frequently and enjoy your housework more.

Fresh grease spots can be removed from a rug by first covering the spot with blotting paper and applying a hot iron. Cover with magnesia, let remain 24 hours and then brush off. If we would only get right to it and remove grease stains as soon as they are discovered, so many things would clean up beautifully that otherwise will never look the same.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If a girl has a mind that gets up and goes round like a wheel, she's sure to have an interesting face. Mental animation not only puts high lights in the eyes and imparts a certain beauty to the lips, but it acts upon the circulatory system, reddens the cheeks. Facial expression should offer fascinating variations. Why wear the same old face all the time? That's what happens when the bored baby pulls a long phiz, looks as if life were scarcely worth the trouble of eating, sleeping, breathing and dressing. One glimpse of that human vinegar cruet is enough, no matter if she wears a Paris model, a whoopde-do coiffure, and a perfectly designed complexion.

Sage tea will darken gray hair, but it is not a permanent dye. The shampoo will remove it. Steep half an ounce of the leaves in a pint of water, cool, strain, add two ounces of alcohol. Experiment on a lock of hair before applying to the entire brain crest. Best always to test out a coloring agent.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Correct Introduction

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A socially prominent man who has lived in this city for years, married an out-of-town girl, bringing his bride here to live. No dinners or entertainments of any kind were given for them (which seemed very unusual to me, considering the groom's popularity). Please tell me whose fault this was. Should friends of the groom have given entertainments in their honor or should the couple have sent out "At Home" cards?

2. While working in the office of a firm, one of their salesmen came in. The stenographer introduced him to me: "Miss Jones, may I present Mr. Smith?" Wasn't this too formal for the occasion? If so, please give me the correct form.

J.

1. I too would think that it is most unusual that the friends of the groom have not planned dinners and other kinds of parties in compliment to this couple and to the wife. It would seem such a natural thing for them to do, to say nothing of a gracious and hospitable thing for them to do. And especially since the groom is such a popular young man.

Yes, it is quite correct for the couple to send out cards for an "At Home," but of course this party is in a quite different category.

2. The form of introduction that this stenographer used was in excellent taste. Of course she might have used the more casual form of mentioning only the names, "Miss Jones, Mr. Smith" . . . and still she would have been correct. But I do very much like the form of introduction she used, and she dignified the introduction by using this form.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

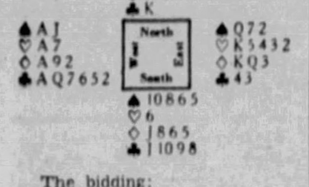
Avoiding the Obvious

Probably more players have come to grief through an excessive use of finesses than they have any other way. Once a player learns how to finesse, he is unable to restrain himself from exercising this knowledge at every opportunity, practically never realizing this play is only effective part of the time.

Mr. Charles Lockridge, one of the more brilliant players of the younger generation, recently played a hand in which a refusal to take a finesse rewarded him with a game, which otherwise he could not have made. Mr. Lockridge sat West.

West—Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♣(1)	Pass	1♡
Pass	3NT(2)	Pass	Pass

(1) The hand is not strong enough to warrant a two-bid.

(2) A slight overbid, but if East holds anything in clubs, the game is practically assured.

North opened the heart Queen, the sequence being so solid that he could disregard the fact that East had already bid the suit. Mr. Lockridge won the trick in his own hand with the Ace, and paused to consider the situation. The most obvious method of play seemed to be to lead over to the diamond Queen in order to take the club finesse. This method of play, while obvious, was doomed to destruction. Actually, a much better play was in sight and Mr. Lockridge took it.

On the second trick, he laid down the club Ace. This may seem to be mind-reading inasmuch as the singleton King was dropped, but this was not the real reason for the play. There were five clubs outstanding, and at least one club trick must be lost. If the King had not fallen, Declarer would have gone over to the Dummy with a diamond and led another small club. This provided him with a little extra margin of safety, and his play to the second round of clubs would be based on South's play. This is a very common type of safety play, the value of which is rarely appreciated. After the club King fell, Mr. Lockridge led two more rounds of clubs, and South was helpless. He was forced to return a spade, which was won by the Ace, and one more lead of clubs established the suit.

Safety of one's contract should always be the primary consideration in the play of a hand, and safety can very often be assured by a mere refusal to take a seemingly obvious finesse.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S QUESTION

♠AKQ1085 ♡J ◇A ♣KQ964

Answer — One spade. The hand does not contain sufficient honor strength or playing-tricks to justify an Opening two spade bid, and an Opening three or four spade bid should not be made because of the two-suited nature of the holding. Furthermore, the hand is evidence of a distributional storm, and it is very unlikely that the bid of one spade will be passed by the other three players.

Cuban Archbishop's Beatification Fails

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—One of two miracles advanced as proof for the beatification of the Rev. Antonio M. Claret, founder of the congregation of Missionary Sons of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, and archbishop of Santiago, Cuba, was disapproved by the Congregation of Rites, meeting with Pope Pius on May 3.

The postulation of the cause is now gathering evidence of another miracle to be submitted to the congregation.

Church Convention Hears Graham Talk

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 26.—Law enforcement problems were discussed by United States Attorney Louis E. More than 400 delegates, representing 100 churches, are attending.

Drought Hits Crops In Three Counties

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 26.—Drought, temporarily relieved last week, again has become acute in Cambria, Somerset and Bedford counties, and corn and potato crops will be adversely affected, according to farm agents.

Farmers are hauling water from large streams, with springs and wells upon their properties dried up. North Cambria coal mines face a water shortage that threatens a shutdown unless relief comes soon.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Gouty? Then Fight Shy of Purines in Your Food

Gout is a disease frequently confused with rheumatism and arthritis. Gout is not caused by an infection, as they are, but is probably due to inability of the body to rid itself of uric acid. Although the disease has been known to mankind for many years, it must be confessed that its exact cause has not yet been definitely determined.

Dr. Copeland

Uric acid is a substance normally found in the blood stream and urine. In gout the blood contains an excessive amount of uric acid, while there is an abnormally low percentage in the urine.

The salts of uric acid are deposited in the tissues around the joints. This causes swelling of the joints, inflammation and great pain. Cartoons and "funny strips" in the newspapers frequently picture a person suffering from gout, with the foot elevated on a chair and the big toe wrapped in bandages. The funnies" give us an accurate picture of a sufferer from gout.

Men more than women are afflicted with gout, and it occurs most frequently between the ages of 30 and 40. Heredity, overeating, drinking of red wines and beer, lack of fresh air and exercise—these are a few of the accepted causes of this disease, and some cases have been associated with lead poisoning.

During an acute attack of gout, complete rest in bed is imperative. The foot or inflamed joint should be kept quiet, elevated and warm. The diet should be limited to milk, toast, cereals (except oatmeal), potatoes and fruits. Coffee, tea, alcohol and all meats should be omitted from the diet and water should be taken freely. Proper intestinal elimination is imperative.

Chronic sufferers from gout should avoid foods which are rich in "purines." These are chemical compounds, found in certain foods, that produce an excessive amount of uric acid. That is why all sufferers from gout should avoid sweetbreads, liver and kidney. Attacks of gout often follow the eating of these foods, which contain unpleasant quantities of purines.

Avoid meat broths, gravies, fish, poultry and game. Oatmeal, asparagus, mushrooms, spinach and cauliflower should be eaten sparingly. The diet should consist of eggs, milk, cheese, cereals, sugar, fats, fruits and most vegetables.

Every case of gout should be under supervision of a physician. In many instances electricity, light and heat, strapping the inflamed joint with adhesive and other measures, when properly employed, aid in the relief of the pain and hasten recovery.

The diet is the most important part of the treatment of gout. Please remember that, in order to be effective, the diet must be closely followed over a long period of time. Do not expect an immediate cure.

BUCS ON BRINK OF SECOND DIVISION

THE SAD SLIDE of the Pirates reached such a point after yesterday's double slam that danger now threatens from the rear. Far from having only the clubs ahead of them to think about, the Bucs now have got to reckon with a couple of teams right behind them, and if George Gibson does not succeed in rallying his groggy forces immediately Pittsburgh's erstwhile pennant bidders may not only lose third place but will be on the brink of a drop into the second division.

George Gibson

Today the Rovers were only a game and a half ahead of the destroying Phils and fourth place, and only two and a half box scores separated them from the Braves and the fifth hole. With the Bostonese waiting to get a crack at them, following the departure of the Phils tonight, the Bucs will have to do a quick face about or they'll be viewing the race from a place outside the money. First place can be glimpsed only with a spyglass now after the loss of 22 of the last 27 games, including and the dropping of seven straight to the Phils. The Bucs are seven games from the top, and the gap is even wider than it appears, by reason of the fact that they're nine games below the Cubs in the "lost" column. Without reckoning Brooklyn, if the Bruins were only to break even in their remaining 34 games the Pirates would have to win 23 out of 30 to beat them out. And 21 of those 30 are to be played away from home.

YOU CAN'T TELL Joe Tinker that Babe Ruth is ripe for retirement. The former star shortstop saw a game at the Yankee Stadium the other day and raved about Ruth's work. "I had been told that the Babe was slow and ready to retire," Tinker said, "but the retirement can be postponed for another year, and perhaps for two years.

"The way Ruth skipped from first to third on a rap to left field convinced me that he is just getting ready for a great finish. I didn't see any tell-tale signs in the Babe. He made a peg to the plate that was just about as good as you can see made by any player, young or old. We need a player like Ruth around to give tone to the game. We never saw, and never may see, his equal."

THE GREAT VALUE of control to a pitcher is well illustrated in the case of Bump Hadley, of the Browns. If Hadley had control he'd rank with the highest. Lack of it has led to his being traded by a couple of clubs, first by the Senators and next by the White Sox.

American League players agree that Hadley is one of the hardest pitchers in the league to hit when he can get the ball over the plate. The game in which he beat the Yanks and held them to four hits the other day bears them out. Hadley, wild as usual, gave eight bases on balls, but when he managed to get the pill over the platter he struck out Babe Ruth three times.

THE LAST OF the Eastern clubs to visit Forbes Field this year will appear when Boston follows the Phils into town tomorrow for a four-game series ending next Wednesday. Only two Western teams, the Reds and Cards, will remain to be seen here after the Braves, prior to the closing of the local season on Labor Day. Since their last appearance here, the Braves have lost three valuable players through injuries—Outfielder Bob Worthington, Catcher Pinky Hargrave and First Baseman Art Shires—but if they run true to form they will continue to make trouble for the Pirates just the same. They have proved one of the hardest clubs to beat that the Bucs have met during the season, and they hold the edge over Gibson's men in the year's series to date, eight games to seven.

Alvin Crowder

BEHIND THE WILLINGNESS of Alvin Crowder to come back after only two days' rest and pitch twice against Cleveland in the same series, bearing down as though the world title were at stake, there was more than the incentive of a chance to beat out the Indians for third place.

For it develops that Crowder, who was tried by the Pirates on the spring trip of 1926, gets a bonus if he wins 18 games. He scored his seventeenth win when he faced Cleveland the first time in the series and he was pitching for the money when he made his second start. He was batted out in the ninth round and did not receive credit for Washington's 13-inning victory, but still has plenty of time in which to earn the extra pay.

NO DOUBT THE Yankee officials have been quietly making preparations, behind the scenes, for a world series. But Col. Jacob Ruppert shares Joe McCarthy's views on the uncertainty of baseball. The club owner won't discuss a possible series and has warned New York fans not to send in any ticket applications.

It is expected that arrangements for the series will be officially ordered by Commissioner Landis at a meeting of the owners of pennant contenders on September 15.

GOOD JUDGES OF fistic talent who attended the Olympic Games are not reporting very favorably on what they saw in the boxing events. They say that when the Olympic boxing was buried as the last number on the program it was placed where it belonged, and that they never witnessed so much hugging and wrestling in three-round matches. It is said that neither Carmen Barth nor Eddie Flynn, the only American boxers to win titles, has a professional future. Louis Salica, a flyweight eliminated in the semi-finals, is voted the best bet of the lot.

VETERAN TENNIS MEN smile when, in an attempt to praise the skill of some player, critics tell of his having made Henri Cochet 20 five sets. Those five-set matches are old stuff with Cochet. He just lets them drift that long, but if he wants to win he never fails.

There are some who insist that Henri can spot any man in the world two sets and still win. They recall his last visit to this country in 1928, when he won the United States championship, and relate that he gave Francis T. Hunter a two-one advantage in the final for the title and then pulled the match out just like picking daisies.

SPECULATION AS TO the outcome of the international motorboat competition for the Harmsworth Trophy, starting one week from tomorrow on Lake St. Clair at Detroit, centers around the dash to the first buoy.

It is figured that the struggle between Gar Wood and Kaye Don will be largely a matter of trying to beat each other to that first turn rather than covering the entire course.

Gar Wood

THE DISTANCE FROM the start to the first buoy is 12,160 feet, two nautical miles, a longer run by a full mile than that to the first turn on the river course last year. There is a half-mile turn, a backstretch of three nautical miles, another half-mile turn, and then a run of three nautical miles up the shore side of the course. The boats are to cover this course five times in each race. The inside of the course is most important, as the boat that all but brushes the marks on the turn is racing the shorter distance. It has the edge. The other may be two or three miles an hour faster, but such a margin, it is estimated, will not be sufficient to head off the rival that gets down to that first buoy in front and keeps the inside.

OAKMONT STAR WINS FINAL BY 3 AND 1

By TOM BIRKS

Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth, of the Oakmont Country Club, one of the ranking stars of Tri-State district women's golf for many years, annexed her first Western Pennsylvania women's championship today when she defeated Miss Barbara Warmcastle, young champion of the Pittsburgh Field Club, 3 and 1, in the final round of the annual title tournament at the Fox Chapel Golf Club.

Mrs. Wadsworth, defeated by Miss Anieannette Hunter, also of Oakmont, 1 up, in the final last year, eliminated several title favorites in crashing through to the championship. She played brilliant golf to dethrone Miss Hunter in the first round, and then turned in a spectacular 83 to nose out Mrs. Frank Campbell of Stanton Heights, former champion, on the home green.

GAINS EARLY LEAD

The title match did not produce the brilliant golf that had been expected. Miss Warmcastle, like Mrs. Wadsworth, had played almost flawless golf in the earlier rounds, but the putting of Miss Warmcastle and the approach shots of both finalists were very erratic today.

Mrs. Wadsworth won the second and fourth holes, and although she never was able to add to this advantage until the match ended on the seventeenth green, Miss Warmcastle never was quite able to square the duel. Mrs. Wadsworth enjoyed a lead of 1 up at the turn. The cards:

Mrs. Wadsworth—
Out	5	5	4	5	5	4	5	7	5—47
In	5	3	5	5	4	4	5	4
Miss Warmcastle—
Out	5	7	4	5	4	4	5	5	5—46
In	5	3	6	4	7	4	5	5

Mrs. Wadsworth won the second hole with a 6 when her opponent twice hit a tree in attempting to shoot her ball out of the rough, and boosted her margin to 2 up by winning the fourth with a 5 when Miss Warmcastle pitched weakly and then required three putts to hole out. Barbara reduced the Oakmonter's lead to 1 up on the fifth when Mrs. Wadsworth's second shot landed in a trap.

MISSES SHORT PUTT

The sixth was halved in par figures, but Mrs. Wadsworth regained her 2 up advantage at the seventh when Miss Warmcastle, after a tremendous drive, pitched over the green and finished by missing a short putt. Miss Warmcastle won the eighth by a two-stroke margin when Mrs. Wadsworth encountered two traps.

The new champion retained her lead of 1 up as the ninth, tenth and eleventh were halved in par, but at the twelfth Mrs. Wadsworth again became 2 up when EXPLANATIONS OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOONS: MONT BLANC—Mont Blanc, the highest peak of the Alps, rising to a height of 15,781 feet, is neither in Italy nor in Switzerland, as is popularly assumed. It is situated in France, about seven miles from the Franco-Swiss border. An Italian Fascist claimed a few years ago that he had climbed Mont Blanc for the purpose of renaming it Monte Mussolini in honor of the Italian dictator. Mussolini accepted the honor, but was astonished when it was called to his attention that the mountain is not within Italian territory at all. A BEST SELLER IN SPITE OF 20 PUBLISHERS—"Robinson Crusoe," a best seller for the last 215 years and probably for all time to come, was written by Daniel Defoe, who founded his tale upon the experiences of Alexander Selkirk, a castaway on the lonely island of Juan Fernandez. The manuscript of "Robinson Crusoe" was rejected by a score of book publishers who failed to foresee the immense popularity of the work. William Taylor, who finally purchased the book, made a considerable fortune by it.

BUCCOS LOSE DOUBLE BILL TO PHILS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

All washed up, in a sense, so far as the pennant is concerned, the cracked-up Pirates today were to begin the work of salvaging a first-division berth which would insure the individual Buccos a piece of the world series pie.

The awful conduct of the Freebooters while competing with the Phearless Phils reached a climax yesterday as the home team suffered a lacing in both games of a doubleheader. Charley Grimm's Cubs having won another game, the Windy City outfit this morning was seven full games ahead of the Pittsburghers.

MAY DROP FURTHER

The Rovers, moreover, are but one and one-half games ahead of the club that is responsible for all their woe. Indeed, there is danger that the Buccos will topple into a distinctive second division berth unless they get together quickly.

The Pirates and Phils are due to stage their last local battle of the season this afternoon. Another victory for the Quakers would find them almost in a deadlock with the slumping Buccos. Both teams are "shot" for pitchers as a result of the ordeal of yesterday, but it is likely a duel of righthanders will be held. Leon Chagnon is available for Pittsburgh duty while Phil Collins is ready to twirl for the Quakers.

In defeating the Buccos 11-3 and 6-5 yesterday, the Men of Shotton recorded their seventh straight success over the Pirates and their fourteenth verdict in 18 battles. The second contest of the dual bill was not decided until the tenth when the home team was outsmarted on a clever squeeze play executed by Barney Friberg and Hal Lee.

HANSEN STRONG

There wasn't much to the opening fight. Snipe Hansen put on a staggering act as the kid lefthander carried on for nine rounds, but Heinie Meine and Ervin Brame were so easy for the Shotton wreckers that the question was an open and shut affair after the fifth inning. The Phils just naturally teed off on the two veteran right-handers.

Bill Harris tangled with Ray Benge in the closing clash. Harris weakened about the middle of the contest and retired in favor of Glenn Spencer. The Pirates were three runs in arrears as they entered the seventh, but the Waner act went over in this inning, augmented by a Comorosky single that scored two runs. Jim Elliot relieved Benge in time to let Gus Suhr drive in the tying marker.

Dick Bartell tripled with one out in the ninth and the outlook for the Pirates was gloomy with Chuck Klein coming up. Boss Gibson, however, yanked Glenn Spencer and Larry French stopped Klein and Hurst like a champ.

BUCS' ATTACK FAILS

The Pirates had runners on second and first with one out in the home half, but Suhr and Traynor fell down heavily, especially Pie.

Lee walked in the tenth with one out and Spud Davis slammed a long hit to center, Lee taking third. Friberg crossed up all the Pirates except Suhr with his bunt. Gus made a desperate effort to nail Lee, but he could not scoop up the ball.

The purchase of H. Smith, young ace of the Kansas City pitching staff, by the Pirates was put through yesterday. He will report to the Pirates next Thursday. Kansas City will receive in

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—I said to Griff today, "Who do you think will be elected President this fall?"

Nick Altrock

Griff said, "It makes no difference to me. I have to slip him a solid gold pass every spring, regardless."

I said, "It looks like very close to me."

Griff said, "If you want something close to look at, just flash that National League race. It's tighter than a Pullman car window."

I said, "In case he gets elected, does Roosevelt like good baseball?"

Griff said, "He must. I never heard of him watching that Albany team."

I said, "How is Franklin D. at throwing out the first baseball of the season?"

Griff said, "If you believe the Democratic National Committee, he's got a delivery like Lefty Grove. On the other hand, if you fall for Republican propaganda, he's liable to hurl it over the centerfield fence."

SHOOT CLASSIC ON TODAY

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Clay targets that cost a cent apiece went whirling through the air here today, carrying a purse of $11,000 to go with America's greatest trapshooting honor, the Grand American championship.

A field exceeding 800 marksmen went to the firing line during the day seeking this highly-coveted prize. Included in the list were eight former champions, but the odds were strongly against them. They've been holding these Grand Americans for 32 years, and not once has it been won twice by the same shooter.

Yesterday, 700 experienced and inexperienced marksmen were compelled to sit back and watch the $4,000 preliminary handicap go to a 17-year-old Lansing, Mich., farmer boy, Bobby Olds, who pulled onions and sold vegetables to finance his trip to the tournament.

Olds posted a 99 out of 100 score early in the afternoon and then let the veterans blaze away at his mark. Ted Renfro, of Dell, Mont., and George Ranson, of Springfield, Ill., came the closest with 98 each, the Illinois marksman winning second money in a shootoff.

Giants Expected To Retain Terry

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Announcement will be made soon that Bill Terry will again manage the New York Giants, it was reported today.

A meeting of the Giants' board of directors at which Terry was scheduled to be named 1933 manager was to have been held yesterday, but did not take place, officials of the club said.

President Charles A. Stoneham was said to be pleased with Terry's work and favored his retention.

Springfield Legion Nine Wins Title

GASTONIA, N. C., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—An aggressive team of youngsters from Springfield, Mass., yesterday won the Eastern American Legion Junior baseball championship by defeating Baltimore, Md., 6 to 2.

Cohn, O'Connell Gain Semi-Finals

MRS. HILL COPS CLOSE MATCH

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Opal Hill, of Kansas City, reached the semi-final round in defense of the women's western golf title, but only after a bitter 21-hole battle with Jean Armstrong, of Chicago.

The young Chicago player had a one-hole lead yesterday at the end of nine holes, and added another at the start of the return journey. She slipped back, however, and only a sharp rally squared the match by the eighteenth. They halved the next two, but a poor first shot spoiled Miss Armstrong's chances and Mrs. Hill won the twenty-first and the match with a par 5.

Mrs. Hill will meet Mrs. Tom Wallace, of Tulsa, Okla., in the semi-finals today. Mrs. Wallace advanced by a 2 to 1 victory over Mary Elizabeth Ford, of Kansas City, playing steadily after gaining a one-hole margin at the halfway mark.

Lucille Robinson, of Des Moines, upset Mrs. J. Walter Beyer, of Tulsa, Okla., and will meet Mrs. Roy Greene, of Glendale, Cal., in the other semi-final. Miss Robinson was one up at the turn and added another to win, 3 and 2 over the Trans-Mississippi and Oklahoma station champion. Mrs. Beyer had been expected to reach the finals.

MARK KOENIG GIVES BRUINS BALANCE AND STRENGTH

FORMER YANK AIDS CUBS IN BIG DRIVE

Associated Press.

Mark Koenig, veteran shortstop the Chicago Cubs reclaimed from big league oblivion three weeks ago to steady their infield, fast is proving himself the biggest $10,000 worth of baseball player to appear on the scene this season.

Mark Koenig

His eyesight completely restored by an operation, Koenig has come back to the big show to play magnificent ball for the Cubs in their drive for the National League pennant. He never was a great hitter, but they claim he is fielding even more brilliantly than in 1927, when he was with the champion Yankees.

KOENIG BRILLIANT

With Koenig in the lineup, a steadying influence on the youthful Billy Herman at second base, the Cubs have won nine of their last 10 games. The veteran, who was brought back from the Pacific Coast League, where he had been sent to finish out his playing span, has won several games with his bat, but his fielding has been of the greatest value.

He handled 10 chances perfectly yesterday as the Cubs repulsed Brooklyn again, 9 to 3, and extended their lead to 5½ games. In addition, he contributed a pair of singles to a 13-hit attack on three Dodger pitchers. Guy Bush just about paralyzed Brooklyn's flag hopes by yielding only seven hits.

The Pittsburgh Pirates also dropped further behind when the Phillies bombarded them twice, 11 to 3 and 6 to 5, the latter going 10 innings.

In the only other National League game, the Giants socked Bill Hallahan and two other St. Louis hurlers for 17 hits and a 6-to-5 win. Marshall hit a double and three singles.

BABE, LOU STAR

Lou Gehrig's twenty-eighth home home run of the year with none out in the ninth inning clipped Cleveland, 4 to 3, and gave Lefty Gomez, of the Yankees, his twenty-first victory. Babe Ruth previously had belted his thirty-sixth with Combs on base.

Another game was decided by a circuit drive at Boston, Benny Tate, of the Red Sox, pounding one over the fence with one on to beat the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 4.

The Athletics went on a batting rampage behind Tony Freitas to overwhelm the St. Louis Browns, 15 to 5.

Washington collected 16 safeties off three Detroit flingers to win handily, 8 to 5. Firpo Marberry went the route to score his second victory of the week.

Local Polo Stars To Oppose Ohioans

The Pittsburgh Polo Club will invade Columbus, O., Sunday to assist the River Ridge team in closing its home schedule.

The Pittsburghers defeated River Ridge in an early-season game and will be out to make it two straight over the Ohioans. Al Holman, former Ohio State backfield star, is a member of the Columbus team.

New Champ, Runner-Up

BARBARA WARMCASTLE

MRS. S. F. WADSWORTH

Mrs. Wadsworth, Oakmont Country Club star, won the Western Pennsylvania women's golf championship by defeating Miss Warmcastle, young champion of the Pittsburgh Field Club, 3 and 1, in the final of the annual tournament at the Fox Chapel Golf Club today. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

OAKMONT STAR WINS TITLE

Miss Warmcastle put her second shot into a trap at the left of the green and required two strokes to get out. Mrs. Wadsworth played the thirteenth in par, but lost the hole when her young opponent dropped a long putt for a birdie 4.

Both finalists pitched into traps at the fourteenth, but Mrs. Wadsworth won the hole when Barbara took three strokes to blast her ball out of the sand. The fifteenth was halved in par, and Miss Warmcastle three-putted on the sixteenth green to give her opponent a halve there.

CASHES IN ON ERRORS

The match ended on the seventeenth when Miss Warmcastle drove into a trap and took two shots to get out. Mrs. Wadsworth's drive was very short, but she played safe and cashed in on her opponent's errors.

Miss Mary Kuhn won the final in the second flight at the expense of Mrs. M. K. Garber, 2 and 1, and Mrs. W. Bickel defeated Mrs. Thomas Gray, 4 and 3, in the third flight final. Miss Bertha Brooks defeated Mrs. J. E. Jackson, 7 and 6, for the fourth flight trophy.

JOHNNIES GAIN ON LEADERS

Johnstown's Johnnies gained important ground on the league leading Charleston Senators in the second half Middle Atlantic League race yesterday. The Johns defeated Clarksburg in both ends of a double header, 5-to-1 and 8-to-6, while the Senators were bowing to Beckley, 5-to-4.

Thompson hurled a splendid game for the Johns to hold the Generals to a single run in the first game, while in the second, the victors choked off a threatening General rally in the last inning.

U. S. Born Pros Seek Second Win

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Capt. Horton Smith and his army of American-born golf professionals, took the field today to try to build up something better than a one point lead over Tommy Armour's foreign-born forces, at the Oak Park Country Club.

In four ball matches yesterday, the home boys won the series, 3½ to 2½. Individual struggles was the assignment for today.

In spite of a nice 69, three under par, by Ed Dudley yesterday, he and his teammate, Billy Burke, lost to Harry Hampton and George Smith, of the "invaders," 1 up, and the Gallett brothers, Francis and Len, defeated Joe Turnesa and Al Espinosa, 2 and 1.

Leo Diegel and Johnny Farrell gave the Americans a victory over Jock Hutchinson and Laurie Ayton, 2 and 1, and Denny Shute and Tom Creavy outpointed Armour and Bob MacDonald, by the same margin. Horton Smith and Al Watrous gave this side another victory, downing the Hackneys, Clarence and Dave, 1 up, while Walter Hagen and Olin Dutra, of the home forces, were held to a draw by Jose Jurado and Harry Cooper.

STAR RED FIRE M'NARY HOPE IN 'CHASE

By JESS CARVER

George McCook, gentleman rider, is going to have a leg up on Red Fire, Mrs. George B. McNary's crack hunter, in the post and rail chase, feature event on the six-race program of the Pittsburgh Hunt Club tomorrow and the remainder of the field had better look sharp.

McCook and Red Fire made a game but futile bid for permanent possession of the Pennsylvania Hunts steeplechase cup at Greensburg last October, but after racing neck and neck with Barlecorn, W. T. Durant's star entry for over half the distance, encountered ill fortune at one of the last jumps and finished second. It was a great race Red Fire ran in that day, a game, heart-rending race that deserved a better deal from the fates.

Opposing Red Fire tomorrow will be the Lazy Hour Ranch's Pedro, with Joe Thompson riding; Bandmaster, George G. Davidson's hope, and Bliss Flaccus' Starborn.

The race will be over the three-mile route, the entries to carry 165 pounds, with no allowance for sex, age or weight. Red Fire has the post position.

Second race, $125, brush, 2 miles, open to any rider; weight 155 pounds; no allowance for age, sex or rider.

PARKS GOLFERS CARD DUELS

The Schenley and county parks golf teams will battle next week in a pair of 18-hole tests for the district team championship. Two 10-men teams will clash on Tuesday at South Park and on Thursday resume the action over the Schenley course. Match play, with the Nassau system of scoring, will be employed.

The lineup of the parks team will be announced at a later date.

The final club team matches of the W. P. G. A. will be held at the Pittsburgh Field Club next Wednesday, with Oakmont, South Hills, Stanton Heights and Highland, the latter the defending champion, taking part.

DUNDEE LOSES

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Johnny Dundee, once one of the world's greatest featherweights, tried to give away 17 years and five pounds to Al Dunbar, young Armory fighter, at Fort Hamilton last night and absorbed a licking for his pains. Dundee won only two rounds, the second and seventh.

Crippled Horse 'Chase Winner At Saratoga

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(INS.)—A horse on three legs limped over the winner's line in a dramatic climax to the sixth running of the Eastern Horse Club hunters' steeplechase here yesterday afternoon.

That horse was A. F. Goodwin's Marbro, outsider in the field of three at 4 to 1. The 9-year-old son of Tybro broke down at the last jump as Annapolis, the favorite, fell.

Rigan McKinney, of Cleveland, who rode Marbro, was quicker to sense elimination of the favorite than the plight of his own mount. He raised his whip to strike when Marbro slowed to a staggering walk, but did not complete the slash. Instead he hastily looked back over his shoulder to gauge the chances of Honker, trailing 25 lengths back, of overhauling his mount.

Marbro made it. Immediately McKinney slipped off his back, saluted the stewards from the field and in the same motion waved for the horse ambulance. Marbro likely will have to be destroyed.

Manufacturers Hold Golf Tournament

A. H. Smith won low gross honors, Carl Kolb was the winner in low net and Joseph Goldstein was the leader in the kicker's handicap in the annual golf tournament of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturing Representatives, held yesterday at the Chartiers Heights Country Club. Fifty members of the Association and guests participated in the tourney.

George Ander, of the Kellogg Sales Company, was chairman of the entertainment committee. Charles Kolb, of the General Foods Sales Company, is president of the Association.

'NATURAL' DUELS CARDED FOR WESTERN

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—A pair of golfing "naturals," eagerly awaited by rabid enthusiasts in Texas, California and Chicago, brought the Western Amateur championship struggle to a thrilling climax today.

Out on the billowy championship trail of the Rockford Country Club courses, Gus Moreland, of Dallas, faced Charley Seaver, of Los Angeles, and Johnny Lehman faced the shots of his home town rival from Chicago, the phlegmatic Ira Couch.

From the standpoint of heated golf arguments, the championship battle couldn't have shifted to a better semi-final bracket. Moreland and his Texas followers were out to prove that the United States Golf Association made a mistake in selecting the hard driving Stanford football player for the Walker Cup team instead of himself. Couch was out to avenge t'e 4 and 2 defeat that Lehman handed him in the Western championship final at Beverly in 1930.

Seaver burned up the course with a record-tying 66 to take a 10-up lead and then breezed back in the afternoon to beat Art Bartlett, of Ottumwa, Ia., by a lopsided score of 11 to 10, four strokes under par.

Lehman was a heavy favorite over Couch in the 36-hole skirmish of the lower bracket. In winning the medal, the former Big Ten champion knitted rounds of 71-67 together to set a new qualifying mark of 137 shots, two lower than that established by the veteran Dexter Cummings, of Chicago, in 1925.

Lehman was off his game yesterday in defeating Don Armstrong, Aurora, Ill., 5 and 4, but has a habit of coming back with a smarter round than ever.

Fight Results

Local Golfer Beats Tourney Favorite

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The going grew tougher yesterday as players neared the semi-finals in the Old White championship golf tourney. Dr. Gory Hogg, of Lewisburg, co-medalist and favorite, falling before George Monroe, of Pittsburgh, 2-1.

Frederik Bruce, of Norfolk, and J. H. Schoolfield, of Danville, Va., fought it out to the eighteenth green before the former sank a putt for a birdie on the home green to win 1 up.

LEGION NINES CLASH

The South Hills and Ford City baseball teams which represented their respective districts in the recent American Legion junior baseball championships will clash at the Dormont High field at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. After defeating South Hills in the title play, Swissvale was defeated at Ford City in the play at York, Pa.

WOMEN'S SWIM GRIND TODAY AT TORONTO

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The 10-mile marathon swim for women, annually one of the sporting features of the Canadian Exposition, drew 85 entrants, mostly from the United States and Canada, today.

Blonde Margaret Ravior, of Philadelphia, who has won the grind twice in succession, once more ruled the favorite. She has an added incentive this year. She is engaged to George Yount, Toronto swimmer, who won the men's event last year, and since first prize in the women's event is $3,009, Margaret believes it will buy a lot of dishes and furniture. She thinks, too, that George will win the men's 15-mile event on August 31 and $7,500 to the housekeeping fund.

Other favorites were Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English Channel; Leah Riley, Keansburg, N. J.; Ruth Tower Corsan and Ruth Downing, of Toronto.

ALBRIGHT MARRIED

BUCCOS, PHILS CLOSE SERIES

exchange cash and two players, to be named later.

Smith, 26-year-old right-hander, has won 16 games and lost eight this season. He previously has served with Springfield, Ill., in the Three-Eye League, and Rochester, of the International League.

CHILLY SAUCE

The Pirates are only four games beyond the .500 mark. The Quakers were just about ready for the doctor when they landed in Pittsburgh owing to their four running setbacks in Chicago. Now they are in a chesty mood again.

The fans are having quite a time giving Richard the Lionhearted the Bronx cheer, but Richard will be laughing in his sleeve when he learns the Phillies have taken 27 decisions from the Pirates in 40 battles since he changed uniforms.

Bartell is a shining example of the value of spirit on the field. There are a lot of boys who have as much ability, but few who hustle with as much consistency, and that is a little more than a mile. On defense Dick is as smart as a whip.

Gus Suhr appeared to be the only Pirate awake when Peters dumped his winning squeeze play bunt on the grass. The firstsacker charged forward with the idea of a one-hand scoop, but the ball eluded him.

It's been a long time since you saw any Pirate put over a squeeze play. The play is a corker when one run is needed and when the man at the plate is an adept at bunting. The minors are full of players who can turn the trick better than the big leaguers.

The Cubs appear to be emulating the Twentieth Century Express. They are out on the main line with no blocks ahead. Or perhaps it's a Penney Flyer the boys are imitating, since Altoona Pat Malone seems to be in the fireman's seat. Pat seems all set to go down the home stretch with his fire ball.

If Burt Shotton had a slab staff to compare with Lefty Grimm's, the Quakers would be one of the best teams in the game. Shotton's outfield is second to none in the league, his infield is a dandy, he has a catcher who can sock like Dempsey and the club as a whole has an attack like a Kansas cyclone.

Davis and Lee, the two Confederates of the Phillv setup, have transformed the Phillies into a ball club. Their new outfielders cover as much of Forbes Field as Jack Fogarty and they are continually on the bases. Lee almost scored on Spud Davis, single of the tenth inning of the finale.

Ouimet Ill, May Miss Walker Play

A cold contracted Tuesday at the Winchester Country Club while playing the opening round of his 36-hole match against Gene Sarazen developed into a more serious illness and the champion was under the care of two nurses and his personal physician.

There seemed little likelihood of his playing in the Walker Cup matches next week, unless his condition improves considerably within the next few days.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Jimmy Johnston was off to the golfing wars again today. The former National amateur champion was en route to Brookline for the Walker Cup matches September 1 and 2 and the National amateur at Baltimore, September 12 to 17.

Lew Feldman Wins Over Tommy Paul

Harry Wallach, 150, Brooklyn, outpointed Lope Tenorio, 143, Philippines, and Jack Rosenberg, 155½, New York, outpointed Vince Hambright, 150, Cincinnati, O., in other 10-rounders.

GOOSBY VICTOR BY KNOCKOUT OVER WILSON

By JAMES MILLER

Last night, at Greenlee Field, Goosby sprang something of a surprise by knocking out Jack Wilson, of the North Side, after two minutes and 27 seconds of milling in the sixth round. A left hook to the jaw, that dropped Wilson for an eight count, was the beginning of the end. Wilson regained his feet, but another right drove him across the ring and he went into a clinch. As he backed out of the hold, Goosby again shot a short right to the chin that floored him for the toll of 10.

RECORD CLEAR

Goosby had a decided edge before the fight ended, winning three rounds, with one going to Wilson, the second, and the first being even. Body blows and nothing else brought about the knockout of Wilson. The numerous punches that found a landing spot on Jack's midsection slowed him down to a walk, giving the Clevelander an easy mark for his hard rights and lefts. Wilson scored several good blows himself, but each time he nailed Goosby he failed to follow through. Wilson weighed 154 pounds and Goosby 154½.

BECKER VICTOR

In the second bout, Al Becker, of Sheraden, had his hands full in winning over Tony Constantine, of Soho. It was a hard-fought affair throughout. Becker was down twice in the first round, first from a left hook, for a count of two, and the other time from a push for no count. From this on, Becker's consistent body attack was a big factor in his victory. Constantine weighed 149 pounds and Becker 152.

Curley Klaas, of the North Side, making his pro debut in the opener, spotted Jack Smiley, Negro, of the Hill, 10 pounds and won over him via the technical knockout route in the fourth round, when Smiley's seconds tossed in the towel. Smiley was down for counts of 8 and one that was 10 by the knockdown timekeepers mallet, but the referee permitted the fight to continue. Klaas weighed 170 pounds.

Red Robinson refereed the second and main bouts, with Jack Henderson working the first and semi-final. Freddie Lux and Lou Meininge were the judges. Norman Borland and Tommy Grant were the timers. Ray Eberle did the announcing.

Between Rounds

John Hernon, promoter at Hickey Park, Millvale, reports a brisk advance sale of tickets for the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Belmont bout on Monday night. Joey Speigal and Jacquer Everillo box a return engagement in the semi-final. A few weeks ago, at Greenlee Field, these two boxers waged a good battle, with Everillo gaining a close decision over Joey.

Seven amateur bouts are carded for the New Kensington Fire Department's benefit show tonight. Jimmy Hightower and Henry Kalenna box the feature event. Another simon-pure show is scheduled for the Charleroi ball park tonight. Seven fights, bringing together the best of the up-river talent, are on the program.

Eddie Kapphan, promoter, reports that he has a full crew of men whipping his new arena, on Western, near Allegheny avenue, North Side, into shape for an early opening next month. The seating capacity of the club will be 5,000.

Brothers to Duel At Arden Races

Jim Jiarrusso and his brother, Jack, have filed their entries for the auto races to be staged at Arden Downs Speedway, Sunday at 2:00 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

Jim was entered in the races on the Fourth of July, but unfortunately crashed into the rail during the qualifying test and demolished his speedster.

Brother Jack ran into a streak of bad luck also, throwing a wheel on the sixty-fourth lap, but by superb driving kept the speedster from turning over. These two brothers are out to trim one another and the spectators can look for a lot of thrills.

Thomas must win to stay in the City League second half lead.

Tomorrow evening the Homestead Grays will return to town to meet Dormont at Dormont. Cum Posey and his athletes are making their visits locally few and far between.

The Books gained a vantage position on the trail of the leaders last evening by defeating the North Siders, 9 to 5 and a victory tonight and a defeat for the Thomas club will ease the Olympia Park representatives into the lead.

CATON TROTTER WINS CLASSIC

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Will F. Caton's champion daughter of Peter Volo, the Marchioness, which won the $60,000 Hambletonian stakes last week, added another rich victory in winning the Futurity trot, $2,500 added, at the Illinois State Fair yesterday.

Caton drove the filly to triumph in straight heats, turning the first mile in 2:02 and the second a quarter of a second lower. Calumet Church, driven by T. Berry, was second in both heats.

The $5,000 added American Pacing classic went to Zambro Hanover, which clipped off the first two heats in 2 minutes each, the fastest time of the year on the American Grand Circuit. His Majesty set a new world record of 2:02¼ for 2-year-old pacers in the second heat of the seventh race, and took the event in straight heats. The former record was 2:02½.

URGES BOOST IN EXCESS RESERVES

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—A monetary expert's interpretation of the recent changes in the security and money markets was given by Harold L. Reed, economist of Cornell University.

Asked what steps the Federal Reserve System ought to take from this juncture, Prof. Reed told me:

Mr. Rukeyser

"I should say that I believe that it would be desirable for the Reserve banks to provide member banks through government purchase operations with about 400 millions of excess reserves. At the present time member banks hold about 250 millions of excess reserves.

SOLVENCY INCREASED

"The recent improvement of the bond market has done much to increase the solvency of the country's banks, but this improvement was not, in the initial stages at least, due to any large extent to bond purchase operations of member banks. It was due more largely to the use by individual depositors of accounts which have been kept idle. In order that there shall not be a near-term recession in high grade bonds, it will be necessary perhaps to depend more largely upon increased bank purchases.

"As regards the technique of further purchases of governments by the Reserve banks, I think it would be desirable to proceed upward in somewhat of a zig-zag fashion so that from time to time the more speculative securities will be tested out. I think we all fear that too rapid an advance of the stock market at thi stime would be injurious in that a subsequent reaction might destroy some of the confidence that now seems to be developing."

LIQUIDATION EXTREME

"While I think that such credit devices as these may do considerable in the way of increasing economic activity, I do not believe that by credit devices alone we can expect shortly to return to anything like the activity of 1928. Until liquidation in city real estate, for instance, proceeds further, there will be little demand for structural steel in the construction of dwelling houses; and in reviewing the condition of the heavy industries in general, it seems to me that they can be stimulated only moderately in the near term by credit policies. I do believe that credit liquidation has gone too far and should be arrested, but I do not think that credit expansion will find nearly as fertile a field to operate upon as in many previous recovery periods.

"In short, I am conservatively optimistic."

Rise in Eastern Railroads Centers Attention on Merger Problems

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The spectacular rise of stocks and bonds of railroads connected with the eastern four-trunk-line merger, which has already received the qualified approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is arousing conjectures among financial interests as to just when the proposed consolidation will be effected.

The original plan to consolidate the eastern lines into four large systems was filed by the railroads with the Interstate Commerce Commission. After lengthy consideration, the commission handed down its approval of the basic idea with a number of qualifying strings attached.

At the present moment, the executives of the four trunk lines apparently are undecided whether to accept the modified merger plan or request the commission to review the entire scheme in an attempt to iron out some of the features which the railroad officials have found objectionable.

* * *

Stocks Make Wide Gains

Stocks of some of the roads which are to be incorporated into the consolidation, such as Lackawanna, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Pere Marquette, and Erie have climbed from 400 to 1,000 per cent in market value above their year's lows. Some of the bonds have also gained from 100 to 200 per cent.

While the Interstate Commerce Commission consolidation plan is not radically different from that proposed by the executives, it raises some controversial questions which may have to be settled before the merger is put into operation.

* * *

May Reach Compromise

For instance, the revised plan is said to be somewhat irksome to the Pennsylvania because it requires that road to relinquish its trustee control of the Boston and Maine and the New Haven as a prerequisite to approval of the Pennsylvania's acquisitions in the merger.

It was recently suggested that a compromise might be reached by permitting the various roads to maintain their present identities with control vested in some sort of an interlocking governorship.

STEEL EXPORTS UP SLIGHTLY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Exports of iron and steel products from the United States increased slightly in July, amounting to 52,558 gross tons as compared with 52,081 gross tons the preceding month.

The Department of Commerce said the trade began its second upward movement for the year in July. Between March and May exports rose from 40,492 gross tons to 8,477 gross tons only to decline in June. Japan was the leading customer in July, taking 17,730 gross tons.

RESERVE BANK CONDITIONS IMPROVE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Increased optimism in financial circles was reflected today by the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement which showed improvement in several phases.

The board reported that the return flow of gold, which has brought more than $100,000,000 into the United States from Europe in recent months, was continuing, and had piled up a total of monetary gold in this country of $4,064,000,000 after an increase of $18,000,000 last week. The amount, however, was $928,000,000 less than was held a year ago.

CIRCULATION DOWN

Another optimistic feature was a decrease of $22,000,000 in the money in circulation, indicating that people were spending and the money was finding its way back into the Treasury. On August 24 the circulation amounted to $5,684,000,000.

In the New York Federal Reserve district the net demand deposits increased in the week from $4,957,000,000 to $5,025,000,000 and the time deposits increased from $827,000,000 to $830,000,000.

U. S. HOLDINGS SAME

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding for the week, the board said, had decreased $16,000,000, but was still an increase of $1,161,000,000 compared with the same week last year. The total daily average was $2,336,000,000.

The total reserve bank credit slumped off $23,000,000 for the week to $2,321,000,000.

The Federal Reserve Banks held $1,851,000,000 in government securities at the end of the week, which was the same as the week before, but an increase of $1,123,000,000 as compared with the same week last year.

BROKERS LOANS UP $11,000,000

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City, increased $11,000,000 during the week ended August 24, to $355,000,000. This compares with $344,000,000 last week, the high record, of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929, and the low mark of $331,000,000 recorded July 27, last.

STOCKS MEET SUPPORT ON DECLINE

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The stock market drifted substantially lower in the earlier hours of trading today, although a number of the leaders met support during the early afternoon.

Traders were inclined to stand aside pending developments at the economic conference in Washington. Furthermore, appointment of receivers for Interborough Rapid Transit had a temporarily dampening effect upon bullish sentiment. An early effort to turn the list upward with a short squeeze in Auburn, which shot up 7 points, was abandoned after the Interborough announcement.

Bulls were encouraged by the slowing up of trading on the decline. A little profit taking from abroad was reported by houses with London and other foreign connection, but in the main, foreigners who accumulated stocks in this market during the past several weeks were said to be maintaining their holdings intact. Some of the profit-taking in the rails may have resulted from a filing of a petition for a receiver for the Frisco by a small bondholder, although the management expressed the belief that the voluntary reorganization plan would be accepted by sufficient security holdings to avoid receivership. It was recalled that E. G. Buckland, head of the Railroad Credit Corporation, had recently asserted that among other important carriers, no receiverships would be permitted this year. Probably selling of the carrier primarily reflected a belief that their advance had been too rapid.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported further gains in lighter lines of industry and in retail trade. Dun's pointed out that the betterment now has assumed a nationwide trend, with no particular area predominating in the revival, except that a few districts in the East are lagging somewhat behind the general quickened stride. The Lamp, official publication of Standard Oil of New Jersey, expressed the view that it is now reasonable to expect that the improvement in the oil industry can be maintained, and carried further, if the industry will continue to heed the lesson it has learned about overproduction.

COPPER, LEAD PRICES UP

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Copper for domestic shipment can no longer be obtained under 5½c delivered. Producers are reluctant to sell at 5½c beyond the end of 1932. Domestic inquiry is somewhat better.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The American Smelting and Refining Company has advanced the price of lead 10 points to 3.50c per pound, New York.

The American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports production of lead throughout the world in July totaled 100,435 short tons, comparing with 104,909 tons in June, and 114,419 in July, 1931. Output of lead for the first seven months of 1932 was 773,882 short tons, against 921,443 tons in the seven months of 1931.

Chilean Nitrate Reduced $11 a Ton

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The Chilean Nitrate Sales Corporation today announced a temporary reduction of $11 a ton in the prices of nitrate of soda.

It was explained that the prices were subject to change without notice and were for August and September delivery only. The new prices, at the usual ports, are $25 per ton of 2,000 pounds, if packed in 100-pound bags, and $24.30 if packed in 200 pound bags.

Salesmanship Not Recognized By Directors

By B. C. FORBES

ALL BUSINESS, all profits, all employment spring from sales.

American industry and business haven't acted as if they realized that simple but fundamental fact.

COULD ALL the facts be gathered, it would unquestionably be found that the majority of enterprises that have best weathered the economic storm are the ones that must fully recognize that selling is of supreme importance.

Mr. Forbes

A SALES executive who has made a record with a very large organization makes these observations to me:

"You hear the complaint very frequently, 'There are few good salesmen today.' If this were true, whose fault would it be?

"It would be the fault, not of the men, but of those responsible for training and managing them.

"Human nature hasn't changed. Salesmen haven't changed. Conditions have changed. Admittedly, it has been harder to sell during the last two or three years. The solving of this problem has not been so much the duty of the salesman as of those employing salesmen.

"How many corporations or companies have earnestly sought to counteract the increased sales resistance by increasing their sales effort? Mighty few. As a matter of fact, many, if not most, companies reduced both their sales forces and their advertising. In other words, when the job became harder, they put forth less effort to lick it."

HE EXPRESSED some interesting thoughts also on advertising and its handling by large concerns. Thus:

"Nobody can successfully dispute today that selling and advertising are of superlative importance in industry and business. But how many companies select directors because of their conspicuous reputation for salesmanship? How many elect recognized advertising authorities on their directorates?

"Most of them have bankers on their boards, many of them have other business men. You find lawyers occasionally on boards. Also, men whose experience has not been remotely along the lines of the company's activities.

"Many companies don't even think it worth while to have their chief sales manager sit on the board. And hardly one, as I have said, thinks it necessary to pick a director having outstanding knowledge of advertising. Yet, without selling, and in most cases without advertising, the whole business would, of course, collapse."

IS IT NOT true that many chief executives who would not dream of putting their knowledge against the findings of their scientists, who wouldn't dream of challenging the conclusions of their chief chemist, who wouldn't dream of telling their chief engineer that his mathematics and conclusions were all wrong, do not hesitate to flatter themselves that they know more about advertising than men who have spent a lifetime conscientiously studying it? Almost any production man who has reached a presidential chair is cocksure that he has profounder knowledge of the science of sales, sales psychology, and suchlike, than the sales manager who won his position because of his demonstrated superiority as a handler of salesmen and sales.

THE HANDWRITING on the wall is that the place of selling, sales management and selling by advertising, will hereafter be viewed in increasingly accurate perspective. Theodore Roosevelt declared:

"The unit of society is not a man or a woman, but a man and a woman."

Similarly, business does not consist of production or selling, but production and selling. One is as vital to profits as the other.

HOW VITAL a part salesmen can play in creating employment is revealed in this news item inspired by President Biechler, of Frigidaire:

"Two of our salesmen, Cuno Perlmutter and Richard Valleau, by selling half-a-million dollars' worth during the first half of this year, provided full-time employment for more than 400 men for an entire year."

SAIL IN and sell!

Jersey's 'Lamp' Sees Oil Trade Gaining

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Emphasizing improvement which has taken place throughout the petroleum industry in the first six months of 1932, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in its publication The Lamp, states that it is reasonable to expect that it can be maintained and carried further if the industry will heed the lesson that "overproduction spells waste."

Hudson and Essex Sales Take Spurt

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—Hudson and Essex sales for the first three weeks of August increased 2,000 units, or about 300 per cent over the similar period in July, according to General Sales Manager Abbott, of the Hudson Motor Corporation. Sales also represent an increase of 17 per cent over the like period of 1931.

Val Begins to Disapprove Of Her Aunt Julia's Ideas of Life

"Evening, Miss Macfarlane! Evening, Val!"

The neighbors, out in front gardens, watering lawns, or just sitting on front steps because it was such a balmy, summery night, all had a friendly greeting as Val and her aunt went by.

Everybody liked Aunt Julia. Everybody knew how good she had been to her folks, supporting her mother after her father died, then nursing the bed-ridden old lady for years.

"Val and I have great old times together," Miss Macfarlane was accustomed to boast, innocently knifing Val to the heart. "We go to the movies every Friday, and get our ice cream sodas afterward. Val's like me, not one to run after the boys."

Val didn't want to be like Aunt Julia. She wanted to be like Millie, beautiful and beloved. And she hung her head when Aunt Julia boasted, because, though she looked like Millie, she was beginning to worry that she was going to turn out an old maid like her aunt.

"What's this about your going out every Friday night with Miss Macfarlane? Aren't the boys good enough for you?" smug Mrs. Clarkson had leaned over the fence to ask just the other day.

INQUISITIVE WOMAN

And then she had poked a pudgy finger in the shrinking Val's ribs and chuckled: "Maybe you're one of those deep ones! 'Maybe she pulls the wool over her aunt's eyes,' I said to Mr. Clarkson, I said, when he was telling me about what she said. But I said, 'Maybe she's waiting for Joey Carey . . . aha! THAT'S it! Don't blush so, you'll burn up. And say, don't let his mother know it—that's all!"

That's the worst of growing up in one neighborhood where everybody knows everybody else, and Aunt Julia so funny about some things.

When Val was younger Mrs. Clarkson used to draw her out, find out the things Aunt Julia had told her about bad men who were supposed to be hovering around with candy, waiting to lure away little girls, and what nice little girls did and didn't do with boys. Then she'd "hoo-hoo" to Mrs. Carey to tell her, and they'd laugh and laugh.

Val never forgave her for that, nor for going around telling the other neighbors that Miss Macfarlane said she was glad boys didn't seem to care for her niece, and she didn't worry about Joe Carey tagging after her, because he was such a sissy it didn't matter.

She wanted to do something wonderful and beautiful for Joey, to make up for that, but she never knew just what to do, and besides, she was ashamed of them noticing how much she liked Joe, so sometimes she wasn't even nice to him.

NO PARTNER FOR DANCE

Joe didn't even care that they called him a sissy. Joe was funny that way. He didn't care what anybody thought.

Val wished that she didn't. But she did . . . awfully.

If all the other girls went to the senior dance and she didn't, she'd just die. Not that the silly old dance mattered. She would not care if they didn't have any dance. She wished dances had never been invented. But to have everyone else go, and feel sorry for her because she had no one to take her . . .

Marjorie said she knew two fellows in the class well enough to promote, but she didn't know anything about "promoting" partners. She'd die before she let them think she was running after them . . . She HAD been nice to them, but they hadn't asked her . . .

It was no use. If Joe didn't get back from Vallejo, and wouldn't take her, Aunt Julia might just as well stop working on the dress, because she couldn't go. She didn't want to go anyway. Joe wouldn't have a dark suit to wear, and he didn't like to dance. She'd told Aunt Julia and TOLD her that she wasn't going, and wouldn't need the dress, and Aunt Julia wouldn't listen.

"It's your class dance, isn't it? And you'll have a pretty dress, won't you? WELL, THEN!"

GO TO MOVIES

You couldn't make her see. She thought all you had to do was go. With her. Or some teacher. Or maybe tag along with Marjorie and Frank Vogel. You couldn't make her understand that you had to go with a boy and programs were made up WEEKS ahead.

Oh, what was the use of TRYING!

"My, but you're quiet tonight," Aunt Julia said, breaking into her uneasy thoughts. "Here, take this two-bits and get some peanut taffy at the Sweet Shop, while I buy the tickets. I like to have something to chew. Well, will you look at that line! I hope we don't have to wait long, but then you've got to expect it when it's a good picture!"

When Val came back with the candy, Aunt Julia was shouldering her way up to the ticket window, and Val took her place with a little group of girls waiting near the life-sized portraits of movie stars in the entrance to the theater.

Marlene Dietrich and Robert Montgomery. Valentine could have screamed. To have to sit alongside of Aunt Julia and watch them make love!

But if it wasn't Dietrich and Montgomery it would have been something else just as impassioned, for Aunt Julia, the man-hater, adored love on the screen and would sit enraptured for hours, making half-stifled remarks to herself.:

"Well, so that's it, my fine lady . . . Hmm, I thought so . . . tut, tut . . . that's no way to act!"

She did it tonight, mumbling and snorting to herself, occasionally poking Val to mutter: "What did I tell you? Didn't I say she couldn't trust him?"

Val slumped unhappily in her seat. The organ played softly, sweetly. Something that Millie once played on her phonograph, in the old rooming house on Fillmore street. She found herself blinking tears away. She didn't know just why she was crying . . . just everything . . .

"Of all the crazy kids! Crying over a picture!"

The lights had come on again, and Aunt Julia, perfectly unconscious of her own wet eyes and reddened nose, was grinning at her niece.

"I wasn't crying!"

DOESN'T E.JOY FILM

She always pointed the moral during the intermission while they were waiting for the comedy to come on, and the moral was always the same!

"Love is all right in pictures. But in real life it's different. It doesn't bring you anything but trouble, and in these days, a divorce, and then where are you? Answer me that! You can get all the love you want in a good picture on a Friday night, and go home and not have the house all cluttered up with a man. And take it from me, you can't trust them—not one—and the less you have to do with them the better!"

"Aunt Julia, would you mind very much if we went home now?"

"NOW? Before the show's over? Gracious! Why? Do you feel sick?"

"Yes—I mean, no—not really. It isn't that. But I thought we could leave a little early, and I could run over to Marjorie's—"

"Tonight? At this hour?"

So Val sat there, hands folded, unseeing eyes straight ahead.

And when it was over at last, Aunt Julia must have her ice cream soda and Val must have one too, though she protested she didn't want it. Still . . . it was good . . . pineapple. The creamy sweetness comforted her a little, slipping coolly down her throat.

"Hay foot, straw foot!" Of course they had to march home, arm in arm, Val's heart heavy, inside her, her mind a perfect blank. But her feet kept time with Aunt Julia's feet, and she sang, "Had a good job, and I left, left, left"—all the way home to Cornish street.

"Good night, Val," Julia Macfarlane said at the door to her bedroom. She didn't believe in good-night kisses. They were too mushy for her, she said.

VAL DISCONTENTED

Val walked down the little hall, and into her own room, next to the kitchen. With her hat and coat still on, she flopped down on the plump white bed to think . . . There was a light still on at Day's . . . Maybe that meant that Joey got home. He said he'd be home Friday or let her know, and he hadn't telephoned . . . unless he did while they were at the movie . . . He certainly wouldn't phone now, at this hour . . . Not that it was really late.

Marjorie Bemis certainly wouldn't think it was late. She and Frank Vogel would be just starting out somewhere. To the second show, maybe, or maybe for a ride in Frank's roadster . . .

A little, bitter smile curled Val's full red mouth . . . Why, when her mother was her age . . . Her mother was married, had a baby, and she . . . she'd never even had a boy friend, unless it was Joe, and Joe didn't exactly count for one, being older, and always having to work . . . Still . . .

Her cheeks felt hot, so she went to the window, sat on the sill, leaning out, sniffing the cool, scented air . . . Honeysuckle, the air was full of it. And a heavier, spicier scent, the heliotrope in the back garden.

Val leaned back against the hard wooden framework of the window. There was a fluttering in her throat and a twitching in her nose. She was homesick for Millie . . . for life . . . for everything that Aunt Julia wouldn't, couldn't give her.

"Oh, what's the use?" she whispered. "What's the use?"

The longing for company, for someone to talk to, someone to understand, was almost overpowering. Her own lonely childhood, the movie with Marlene Dietrich starting out alone in the night to find her lover, and Joey, were all mixed up in her uneasy mind.

"I'll see if he's home," she said to herself, not really intending to do anything of the kind.

Aunt Julia would have a fit if she went over to the Day's, looking for Joe, and Joe wouldn't dare come for her, even if he were home.

But Millie wouldn't have let any Aunt Julia spoil HER life! If Joe wasn't there, and someone saw her, she could make believe she was going to see Betty about the class paper, or something . . .

The cat rose, arched his back, rubbed his battle-scarred old head against her ankles as she tiptoed down the back steps. The boards squeaked hideously . . . good thing Aunt Julia never heard things like that . . .

She waited in the shadow of a straggly pepper tree, for two young boys to pass. When they were out of sight she slipped quietly across the street, and over the crunchy gravel walk, to the Careys' overgrown backyard.

Madge Gets Information from Lillian

"What do you mean?" I asked quickly, disturbed by Lillian's cryptic remark that she saw more than she wished she did.

"I had no business saying that," she parried. "Forget it!"

"I can't," I persisted, "for I'm so worried over the whole miserable business anyway."

"You've christened it admirably," she retorted with a little grimace. "That's just what it is, a miserable business, this of the Dickybird's ridiculous jealousy. Still and all, I don't know but what the average husband might object to so devoted a cavalier as Hugh decorating the immediate landscape.

"He is decorative — you can't get around that—as well as devoted. When he was at least 3,000 miles away, with his actual residence in this vale of tears a matter of speculation, the Dickybird used to chirp violently at the very mention of his name. What he's going to do now, with the cavalier right on the front doorstep—well—better not discuss it."

"But I must," I said stubbornly. "I simply can't cope with this situation by myself, especially if I am kept in ignorance of what is being planned. You speak of Hugh's being on the doorstep. Does he mean to settle down near here?"

"Just a second, lady!" Her tone was peremptory, but her lips were smiling. "Nobody's keeping you in ignorance, the chief reason being that nobody knows anything to tell you. It was from you just now that I heard of Hugh's comment that he could spend more time in his own country now, and of his request that you permit him to see Faith occasionally.

TO GET STRONG BOX

"I know only two things definitely about this whole performance. One is that this afternoon, when they all wake up, you and I are to sit in with our menfolk while Hugh and Lee Chow spill the dope on what's happened. The other—and it sure has me guessing—is that Marion's strong box is to come out of the bank today long enough for Lee Chow to inspect it."

"Do you mean to open those sealed envelopes?" I exclaimed.

"I suppose so, if Lee Chow insists," she said. "You know how I feel about it."

I nodded, for I had more than once heard her impassioned declaration that "dead hands" were guarding that box, and her determination that the injunction of Marion's grandmother not to open the sealed envelopes until the girl came of age should be strictly carried out.

"I don't know what's in Lee Chow's mind," she went on, "but evidently this box is mixed up with something of great importance to his secret mission—something so big that it ought to be put above any private interest. So I'm not making any objection. The final decision, of course, will rest with Marion."

AN UNPLEASANT MEMORY

"That means she will be present at the conference."

"No, only at the opening of the box. And that's where you come in. Remember, it was not intended that I ever know anything about this box. That was the stipulation made by Marion's grandmother, although to do the poor old woman justice, I think it was her senility, not her real self, that dictated that request. She simply went back in her dotage to her original belief in what Tom had told her of me."

"Don't you think I would better tell Marion that Lee Chow wishes to open the box and ask her consent?" I put the suggestion hurriedly. I would have proposed as abruptly to fly the ocean—anything—to take that haunted look from Lillian's eyes, as she referred to that old tragic chapter in her life.

"Yes, that is what I want so much!"

"Please, consider it done. But I shall have to know just what you want me to ask her."

"We'll have to wait for that until the men have their sleep out," she said. "Then I'll find out just what Lee Chow wishes, and tell you. In the meantime, I think I'll go down and insist that Dicky get some sleep. What's your program for the forenoon?"

"Shall I flag Dicky if he shows any signs of coming up here and staging any further scenes of the 'How dare you, woman,' thing?"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Manager Eddie Johns, of the Arsenal Theater, and his able assistant, Russell Niggi, asked the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club which meets in the Arsenal every Saturday morning, what special entertainment they would like tomorrow.

After much debating they decided that they would like to have Eddie Johns stage a one-act comedy on school, because school opens in the next 10 days and for most of the boys and girls going back to school is a serious proposition.

So, Edde Johns, who has only one thought in mind, which is to please the members of his Komic Club, arranged for presentation tomorrow, "School Frolic."

IN TEACHER'S ROLE

The youngsters wanted Eddie Johns to play the part of the teacher, but, Eddie noticing the gleam in their eyes when asked to take this part, declined with thanks and appointed his assistant, Russell Niggi, to the part. School teachers who would like to know the reaction may communicate with Russell tomorrow at the theater.

Abie will be played by Mike Ribich while John Hilliard will interpret the part of Sam. Howard Morris is to be the mischievous lad of the class who is always playing pranks on "teacher." His name during the performance is to be "Slug."

Gresham McGuire who is the "Official Junior Reporter" plays the part of Pat, while Bernadine Gressler, Helen Sherry, Josephine Lang and Jane Neff are the other pupils.

In addition to the "School Frolic" the members will be entertained by Mike Milano and his accordion and each member will receive a large ice cream cone upon entering the theater.

In the statement I had in Wednesday's Daily, which was written hurriedly, I used these words, "While I realize the liquor question is agitating the minds of the voters both 'wet' and 'dry' I can see no reason for making it an issue in this campaign." What I really intended to say was this: "While I realize the liquor question is agitating the minds of the voters both 'wet' and 'dry' and is an issue in this campaign, I can see no reason for making it the main issue in the election of representatives."

Just a Sham Battle

Greed of Nations Composing Opium Bloc Curbs Any Effective Control of Narcotics.

The insincerity of the League of Nations in dealing with the international trade in narcotics has been demonstrated over and over again.

The latest revelation of it is the failure of the anti-narcotic convention adopted by the League at its session in 1931 to secure ratification. From Geneva, it is announced that the records of the League show but a single ratification of the convention, and that was by the United States.

The SEVEN great NARCOTIC MANUFACTURING NATIONS—France, Germany, Great Britain, Japan, the Netherlands, Switzerland and Turkey — composing the "OPIUM BLOC," have withheld their assent. The convention, by its terms, is NOT OPERATIVE until at least FOUR NATIONS SUBSCRIBE TO IT.

When this convention was adopted in 1931, it was hailed in League of Nations circles as a GREAT ACHIEVEMENT, an EPOCHAL REFORM and an INSTRUMENT LONG NEEDED FOR THE PROTECTION OF FUTURE GENERATIONS.

It is now denounced by the Anti-Opium Information Bureau as merely a "scrap of paper." It may well be described as such. It is shown to be nothing more by the smothering action of the narcotic manufacturing nations.

The production and sale of opium is profitable to the nations composing the "opium bloc."

It has long been a rich source of direct revenue to those nations and of profit to their citizens.

Humanitarian promptings, the duties which every enlightened nation owes to civilization and mankind, are less potent as a motivation to these nations than the prospects of financial gain, however disreputable or stained with human degradation.

THE LEAGUE'S BATTLE against the international drug traffic was never anything but a SHAM BATTLE. It is a sham battle now. There is nothing to be expected from the professions, however pious, of the "opium bloc."

If the western hemisphere is to check the poisonous inflow of narcotics from Europe and Asia, it must be THROUGH JOINT ACTION, and the ADEQUATE ENFORCEMENT BY JOINT ACTION of rigorous measures for the non-importation of death-dealing drugs.

The subject is well worthy of a Pan-American conference, as long advocated by the Hearst papers.

Voluntary Salary Cuts

Judges and County Commissioners Could Help Reduce Public Expense by Making Sacrifice.

Belatedly, but actually, the Mayor and members of City Council have agreed to take what amounts to an 8⅓ per cent cut in salary by turning back to the treasury a month's pay for the current year. Its percentage is small beside the reductions made in the pay of other city employes, but it is better than nothing, and shows a willingness to co-operate, to recognize a trend which has occurred in practically every phase of public business.

Now what about the Board of County Commissioners and the judges of Common Pleas and County Court? Will they follow suit? The chairman of the Board of Commissioners receives $15,000 a year, the other two members $12,000 each. The judges of Common Pleas Court receive $14,000 a year, the judges of County Court $10,000.

They are fortunate in that no agency can cut their salaries at this time. The Legislature has fixed them, and they cannot be altered during the term for which these officers were elected.

They are fortunate, also, to have positions paying such comfortable sums. It would seem the part of good sportsmanship, the spirit of co-operation in reducing public expense, for these officers voluntarily to turn back a portion of their salaries to the treasury.

The Cigaret

It Celebrates Its Hundredth Birthday This Year.

One "centennial" that seems to have escaped notice this year is that of the cigaret.

Research establishes the fact that the first "coffin nail" was born exactly 100 years ago and that, like most other epoch-making events, it was due to an accident.

The story goes that in 1832, when French troops were besieging the City of Acre, in Syria, a shipment of pipes to the artillery went astray.

The rest is history.

It was a casual beginning for a habit which once stirred up nearly as much controversy as prohibition, but which has been adopted throughout the civilized world and has created an industry that runs into billions of dollars.

Cigaret smokers and cigaret makers might well commemorate the occasion with exercises or a monument or something.

It is a pity that the name of the cigaret's daddy has been lost in the maze of time.

He did nearly as much to affect posterity as Galileo, Newton or Columbus.

Making Him Howl!

(Copyright, 1932.)

Gov. Roosevelt's Columbus speech made Poor Old Bolivar howl.

With ten million jobless in the land, and the Administration committed to financing the financiers while leaving unemployment relief as a matter for individual localities, the Roosevelt attack on the Administration got under the G. O. P.'s skin.

Hear old Bolivar howl? Are you listening?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 26. — Thoughts while strolling: What became of the old-fashioned girl whose face broke out when she ate coconuts? Sam Harrison's oversized derby. Keep your eye on that movie gal named June Clyde. Helen Menken's new husband, Dr. Smith, is a brother of Ben Smith, the actor. Texas boys.

That yarn from Hollywood. An English actress steeled herself to say she wouldn't work for less than $400 a week. Before she could say it, the producer barked: "I can't pay you a penny more than $4,000 a week." She gasped so hard, he amended: "Well, say $4,500." No word is so deceptive as tacky.

Joe Fejer, still fiddling. He used to play "Traumerie" for Roosevelt at the old Cafe Boulevard. One of my favorite people—Coxey, the insurance go-getter. They are now flavoring tooth-paste with licorice. I could go for rhubarb. Howard Acton, a Bellefontaine, O., boy, who made good in the city.

Zazu Pitts suggests a sudden bite into a peach seed. Nobody could be as bored as Robert E. Sherwood looks. Fred French somehow reminds me of white coral. A cheer for Harry Evans, who started a new business in the depths of the depression. A magazine, of all things. And good luck to him. Flora Le Breton.

One word description of Sinclair Lewis—flaming. Most men-about-town are super bores. And the undistinguished appearing man often is the most distinguished. Wonder if Lew Cody ever got credit for the slang phrase, "heebie-jeebies?"

The business of life seems to be to pass the time away.

What happens to a Notary Public when his commission expires? The stupefying brilliance of those quick-photo parlors. Overheard: "I'm swacked to the gills—and on two rickeys." Whatever became of the bone felons? Wish some one would do a memoir on Bill Guard. And Vernon Castle.

* * *

A gentleman phoned today he was a friend of Robert Hobart Davis—as a means of introduction. My courtesy was in slight restraint. I was certain I knew no Robert Hobart Davis. But something he said made me believe, he might mean Robert H. Davis. Of course, everybody knows Robert H. Davis. He should have said: "I'm a friend of old Bob Davis." That is open sesame the world over.

* * *

It strikes me the word "famous" is over-worked. Like the bosomy adjective "gorgeous." Much blame deservedly lies with the radio announcer. He is unable to introduce an ordinary person—somebody, say, from a basement, heavily-odored of boiled mutton and cabbage. Each person is extravagantly famous. I earnestly believe there are not more than 30 truly famous people in the world. Lindbergh is one. This is a swell way, incidentally, to head smack into a storm.

* * *

A peaceful sweep of lower Park avenue has become a haven for clubs. The magnificent Union League Club is there, with an entrance on 37th street. The Princeton is at Park and 39th. The Woman's City Club, with a membership of professional ladies, is at 35th. In the same square, is the Advertising Club. The Dartmouth is on 38th. The Amherst (Coolidge's alma mater), at Lexington ave. and 37th. And the only time sailors appear as innocent as they look in the "Join the Navy" posters, is when they have a pink tea dancing party with the debbies at their club at 40th and Park.

* * *

A wastrel in Hollywood squanders better than a buck to impart this: "Hollywood has taken so many socks lately, nothing perturbs it. It's indifference is colossal. It is getting so nobody minds the Marx Brothers being at a party anymore."

* * *

My recent paraphrapic juggle with the word "floccillation"—a picking at the bed clothes—has stirred the carphologists. They say, the nervous state of the world lately is that of carphology. It is derived from two Greek words (The good old Greeks would have a word for it!), meaning "chaff" and "to collect." There you are: collecting chaff!

* * *

I could have made carphology hum the other evening, had I a good woolen blanket handy. A snooty little group at the Plaza—a cathedral of movie artifice, off Park avenue—was trying to impress everybody around, who had no interest whatever, that a young actor in the talkie, whose role cast him as a Harvard man, wasn't at all. What impressed me was that the pseudo-Harvardite of the screen was making a living. I know quite a number of college men who cannot. I'm still pretty hot, too.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Midnight—on a shabby, city street.

Rubbish and slime. A thin cat slinking around a garbage can. The stench of stagnant air. The looms of walls, webbed with the fire-escapes on which hung shapeless bundles that were sleeping men.

Not even one clear light—one free, glad sound—one hint of beauty—

And it came to me that, lately, life has seemed like that. All human life. Seeing so much misery these past months—perhaps that's why. But something in me has gone blind. I cannot see beyond the narrow streets of pain—

All life like that black street. No outlet. Even the lives of the luckier, the richer—walls everywhere of ignorance and fear—

What was the use of going on if one was trapped like that—forever? Why should one struggle to hold on to life if that was all it gave?

And for a while, walking up one dark street and down another, finding them all the same, I could think of no answer to my own question.

Then, from somewhere, it came to me. Two lines of poetry, which George Sterling once wrote about my lovely, tumbled city, San Francisco.

Streets there too—narrow and dingy and gray—streets that soared to the sky—streets that swooped to the bay—

And those who walked those streets, knew discouragement too. Knew fear. Wondered if it all was worth while—even as I was wondering.

"AT THE END OF YOUR STREETS ARE SPARS·
"AT THE END OF YOUR STREETS ARE STARS."

Spars—oh, the glamour of their memory!

Gold earth, gold sky and a swaying amber sea. And there at the foot of the hills, in the wide, still light of dawn, the net work of the masts . . . with one white sail unfurled like a great wing.

Spars—baked by the suns—battered by the storms of all the seas. Decks piled high with copra and bales of tea — pineapples from Honolulu—niter from Chili. And the scent of spices and the screech of parrots and the creak and crash of the winches pouring down the bay.

"At the end of your streets are spars—"

Spars of ADVENTURE—

Amethyst vault of the sky spilled wine of the tide . . . and the shadowy streets going up and up—

Past the little shops with the olives and sausages and jars of anchovies heaped in their narrow, crooked windows—

"AT THE END OF YOUR STREETS ARE STARS."

Narrow streets. Lonely streets. Fear walks often in those streets. Hearts cry out against their crowding walls. Against all crowding walls—against all the streets that hem life in.

The Rhyming Optimist

BY ALINE MICHAELS

Like Flowers

Women are like flowers:
Jessamine and rose
Through June's sunny hours
All their charms disclose.
Mignonette and lily,
Larkspur, coral spray,
Under breezes chilly
Shrink and fade away.
But when Summer gaily
Dances down the lanes,
They wax fairer daily
To her blithe refrains.
Love is sunshine, falling
Where morn's mists depart;
Love is summer, calling
To a woman's heart.
Women are like flowers;
Until life is done
Living for those hours

Text for Today

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

If Love Were Deleted

"Love," remarks an Intelligent Modern Girl, "is the bunk! Men don't fall in love any more—and girls don't marry for it. The Slender Passion is as out of style as a pillow-muff and as dead as last May's violets. Among sophisticated people, it is positively declassee!"

* * *

When love dies out, I. M. G., all the beauty will go out of business, the next day. All the perfumers and toilet goods manufacturers, all the owners of silk mills and makers of artificial flowers, all the jewelers and corset makers and plastic surgeons will commit hara-kari, and all the crooners will cut their own throats!

* * *

When love goes out of fashion, publishers of best-sellers will be jumping off roofs, moving picture stars will be leaping from windows, magazine editors will be put in padded cells, and fortune tellers will have to go to work!

Half the big industries in the world, today, are founded on LOVE—and on woman's desire to have love and to hold it.

* * *

It is true that Love is suffering from plenty of competitions. Love has always had a lot of competition in a man's life. There have always been his work, his ambitions, his self-interest and his amusements, for love to combat. But love always won!

* * *

And now, love has to face competition in a woman's life. Not that there is any normal woman who doesn't want, and intend to HAVE love. But the average girl wants so many other things, besides, that love sometimes gets lost—or temporarily mislaid—in the shuffle.

She wants adventure and self-expression and experience. She wants to try her wings and fly high, before settling down in a dovecote. She wants a fling at a career or at a profession. She wants to make money, to travel, to write, to study interior decorating or to try her luck in Hollywood.

* * *

Oh yes! Love has to put up a pretty stiff fight to win out against so many rivals. But, in the end, Love usually gets his way with her. She always wakes up, sooner or later, to discover that success or fame or excitement or adventure doesn't amount to much, unless there is Someone, on the other side of the table or the fireplace, to enjoy it with you, or share it with you. Without love, they are just dead sea fruit!

* * *

Or she discovers that there are just as many thrills in a kitchenette or in a bungalow as there are in an airplane. Or that she can get more kick out of putting up cretonne curtains than out of pulling down a swimming record.

* * *

That's what happens to her. And, if it happens too late, she finds herself wondering why life is so flavorless. Because, without LOVE, nothing has much tang or lick or significance—not even success!

* * *

So, the beauty parlors and silk mills and movie theaters will keep right on running. Because, love will never be obsolete!

The Blunder of Nicholas Biddle

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Some time ago I made reference to the manner in which the National Bank or money power was bludgeoned into the presidential campaign of 1832 to its undoing, and have been asked by correspondents to amplify on the tale. It has its application to a campaign 100 years later—or may if Wall street makes the blunder that Nicholas Biddle did.

From the establishment of the first National Bank there were men in public life hostile to it. Jefferson opposed it in the cabinet of Washington on constitutional grounds. Later, others thought it dangerous because of the increasing misuse of its power. The charter of the second bank was to expire during Jackson's administration—provided he had two terms. He was against the bank because of its interference with politics and in elections. In his first message, therefore, he gave the bank fair warning that a recharter would be refused at the expiration of the old. This was done to give the bank plenty of time to make arrangements.

* * *

Biddle Headed National Bank

At the time, Nicholas Biddle was head of the bank, a brilliant, cultured, handsome man who had had experience in diplomacy. He was not gravely concerned, and hoped to persuade Jackson to a new charter at the proper time through diplomatic methods.

But the leaders of the Whig party had other notions.

These were remarkable men—men of brilliancy and power. This was especially true of Henry Clay and Daniel Webster. The former knew he would be the Whig nominess for the presidency against Jackson in 1832. He had tremendous faith in power—money power. He knew that Biddle's bank, through its control of credit, could exercise a great influence on business men who required credit. He also knew that it had great power with a good portion of the press. He also knew that in a fight it could, and would, pour great sums of money—the depositors' money—into the subsidizing of papers that could be prostituted, and into the campaign coffers of a party that would fight its battles.

It seemed to Clay that if the quarrel between the bank and Jackson could be forced before the campaign of 1832, he would have behind him the power of the bank and its money bags.

* * *

Compromise Plan Offered by Jackson

The Secretary of the Treasury at the time, Louis McLane, was not unfriendly to the bank. He could see its weaknesses and its vices and hoped through some compromise arrangement to save the bank through the elimination of its bad features. He perfected a plan which he submitted to Jackson, who had seemed to have an open mind. He thereupon summoned Biddle to Washington, and the banker was ready to accept the compromise. But, out of deference to his political friends who had been faithful to the bank, he determined first to summon them to a conference and tell them what he thought.

* * *

Clay, Webster Reject Plan

He invited Clay and Webster and took along with him John Sergeant, the chief counsel of the bank, a great lawyer and a prominent Whig. When Biddle submitted the compromise Clay and Webster were dumfounded. For weeks they had been insisting on a battle, and here was Biddle anxious to find a peaceable way out. The compromise would have taken the bank out of the campaign; with the bank out of the campaign its great funds would be out of the Whig campaign coffers, and without these funds and the coercive power of the bank, Clay could not hope to prevail over the popularity of Jackson.

Clay and Webster remonstrated. Very coldly they announced that "the question of a recharter has progressed too far to render any compromise or change of front expedient."

Biddle and Sergeant were amazed and disappointed. Taken by surprise, they asked a recess that they might reconsider.

* * *

Biddle Feared To Make Enemies

That night the conference reconvened. Biddle and Sergeant had not changed their minds. They still favored a compromise and no dragging of the bank through a tumultuous campaign.

Clay assumed the air of a man who had been much wronged. So did Webster. They had been powerful champions of the bank in the Senate, both having at times been on the payroll as counsel, and they announced that they could do nothing more for the institution "if in the heat of the contest the bank, abandoning its reliable friends, should strike hands with its foe."

This, of course, was the blackjack method. It did not change Biddle's opinion of the wisdom of the move, but he was afraid to alienate these powerful supporters.

And so he surrendered and became the tool of Clay—he, his bank and his money—in a political contest with Jackson.

* * *

Bitter Battle At the Polls

The bank became the issue—and the bank now had to fight for its very existence. It would have preferred to fight under cover, but the clever Jacksonians would have none of that. They instantly unlimbered for action and went forth openly to meet the foe and to carry the fight to every man in the corn row, to every worker on the wharves, to every artisan in a shop, to every small merchant in a store.

This made it necessary for Biddle to pour the bank's money into the campaign without stint; to buy newspapers or bribe them; to resort to the most flagrant methods of intimidation with merchants asking credit.

And the Jacksonians saw to it that every voter from Philadelphia to the fringe of the western forest knew just what the bank was doing—and why.

The contest, therefore, was a fierce one—the bank fighting for Clay because its preservation now depended on his election. Biddle had been bulldozed across the Rubicon and there was no turning back.

And that wrote the death warrant of the Second National Bank.

The then money power had staked all on politics and lost, and it had to pay the penalty.

The moral is that even in normal times a clear cut issue between the big banking interests and the public means just one thing; in times like these especially.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

If you are doing worthwhile things you are misunderstood.

You will hear the report that you have some selfish motives in the good you do for humanity.

If you are making well merited advancement some will say that you have had "pull" or have resorted to some underhanded methods to arrive.

In addition you must expect that unfavorable phases of your reputation as well as that of your family will be aired and added to the gossip.

If you have anything in your life that you don't want uncovered, don't boost yourself to the place where your head appears above the others.

Each step you take higher than the majority will make your head a target for shafts of the most adverse kind.

In matters of charity it is the same way and the men and women who are doing good are censured with the favorite variety of criticism—that they are giving what they gained dishonestly.
